MOSCOW (UPI) — President Nixon and Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev bade farewell today with a champagne toast after a week-long summit conference which produced agreements to limit two aspects of the nuclear arms race but which failed to find accord on curtailing multiple warhead missiles.

Under a glittering chandelier at the Kremlin, the two put their signatures to agreements to freeze U.S. and Soviet defensive missiles at their present level, limit underground warhead tests to 150 kilotons each, and begin talks on banning the use of chemicals and weather modifications in war.

A joint communique pledged them to negotiate a new strategic arms limitation (SALT) agreement "at the earliest possible date" and cited their determination to reshape U.S.-Soviet ties further on the basis of peaceful coexistence.

They toasted the accords in champagne, smiled their way through a caviar and vodka celebration and then, with Nixon gesturing animatedly and saluting with both hands, bade farewell after a hearty handshake.

The presidential "Spirit of 76" jetliner lifted off at 10:17 a.m. EDT bound for Caribou, Me. where Nixon was to report immediately to the nation in a nationwide television address.

The week of talks in the Kremlin, according to the communique, "will make a substantial contribution to strengthening world peace and expanding international cooperation."

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger said the new SALT agreement could come within 18 months, but the delay meant that Nixon was returning home without the agreement he had most wanted —one to limit the numbers of missiles which are capable of carrying multiple warheads for striking several targets simultaneously in enemy territory.

Experts have estimated that unless the hydra-headed MIRV missiles are limited within the coming year and a half, they will be too numerous to control.

Even so, Kissinger was hopeful. He said:

"I believe we have found an approach in which the factors that have inhibited progress can be hopefully overcome... This is a problem that is going to be with us a long time—and shouldn't be seen in terms of hitting a home run every time."

The red-and blue-bound documents signed in the gilded St. Vladimir Hall included:

An agreement to limit their antimissile missiles to 100 launchers clustered around either their capitals or an offensive missile launching site. Already, each has its array in place — the Soviet Union's around Moscow, America's around a missile field in North Dakota.

An agreement, which becomes effective March 31, 1976, to outlaw underground nuclear warhead tests above 150 kilotons and to continue talks on banning all such tests.

A joint communique including a statement that the two nations must get together to push an agreement banishing chemical weapons from their arsenals.

A protocol noting that man-made weather for military purposes would be harmful to human welfare and pledging both sides to start talks this year on finding effective measures against its use.

The two superpowers declared a formal "intention to achieve at the earliest possible date the cessation of the nuclear arms race."

Their communique said the

Petitions Seek November Ballot On Warm Springs Dam Dispute

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — Petitions seeking to give Sonoma County residents the right to vote on the controversial Warm Springs Dam near Healdsburg were presented today to the Sonoma County clerk's office.

Iva Warner of Santa Rosa, cochairman of the task force composed of Marin and Sonoma civic and conservation groups against the Corps of Engineers project, said the petitions bear about 13,500 signatures of registered Sonoma voters.

The task force seeks to place on the November ballot an initiative question which will allow voters to decide if they want to vote on the dam itself.

If voters say yes in November, a second initiative question will be necessary at a later election in which voters would decide whether the county should spend the estimated $34 million it will contribute toward the massive $114 million project.

"It's necessary to use the initiative process to restore the vote to the people," Mrs. Warner said, "because a majority of the present board of supervisors has been unwilling to allow the public to vote, and special legislation passed in Sacramento in 1961 at the request of an earlier board permits the board to make the decision without participation of the voters."

She said the signatures have been checked against county voter rolls to determine their validity. An official count will be made by the county clerk's office.

According to Mrs. Warner,

Petaluma Loses Court Stay On Growth Control

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Federal appeals court today refused to grant a stay to the city of Petaluma in its battle to limit its own growth.

The U.S. Court of Appeals for the 9th circuit, in a brief order, denied the motion for a stay pending appeal, but said the city could seek to expedite hearing the case on the appellate level.

In April of this year, U.S. Dist. Judge Lloyd H. Burke ruled after a four-day trial that the ordinance limiting growth in Petaluma to 500 new housing units a year was unconstitutional since it violated the right to travel.

Dope Squad Plan Argued, Put On Shelf

By ERIC M. INGRAM

San Rafael's proposed narcotics squad was placed in limbo yesterday as county supervisors withheld support until assurances are given that the agents will concentrate on traffickers and not users. (Other Marin County supervisors stories, page 17.)

The board's 4-to-1 vote to withhold support came at the urging of the Marin County Drug Abuse Technical Advisory Committee and various drug treatment groups which complained they had not been given time to review the proposal.

Supervisor Robert A. Roumiguiere, in voting against the move to delay 30 days, said "it's the kind of thing we need in Marin. . .the county has become a haven for hard drug pushers."

The matter was before supervisors for their support of San Rafael's application for a $165,000 federal grant to set up the new agency. County opposition would virtually kill the funding.

As worked out by city officials and county police chiefs' association, the five-member narcotics team would be under the operational control of San Rafael's deputy police chief, Lawrence R. Kelly.

Kelly told supervisors yesterday the 11 police chiefs and county sheriff had authorized the new squad to operate countywide.

The application for federal funds says the squad's objective is "a coordinated attack against the principles of organized narcotics syndicates and the subsequent removal of narcotics trafficking. . ." to decrease associated crimes such as burglaries and robberies.

But members of the large audience expressed concern with sections of the application which call for referring those arrested to local drug rehabilitation programs.

"Implicitly it's aimed at small users," Douglas H. Bosco, director of the human relations department said. "Surely they're not going to send 'major traffickers' to rehabilitation programs."

Sheriff Louis P. Mountanos and Dist. Atty. Bruce B. Bales countered that they supported the new agency, Bales saying he knew of "no moratorium" on drug users.

Bella H. Aaron, director of county criminal-justice planning, who prepared the grant application, said "nobody but

Funds For Olompali Park Sought

Gov. Ronald Reagan has included $172,500 in the state budget for purchase of a park and historical site at Rancho Olompali, site of the Bear Flag Revolution, north of Novato.

The California Parks and Recreation Department hadn't included funds in its budget proposal, but Rep. John L. Burton, D-Sixth District while an assemblyman, apparently was successful in getting the funds budgeted, according to Marin County Parks and Recreation director Pierre Joske.

Marin County sought the allocation because it felt the site was of statewide significance, Joske said.

In discussions, "we were talking about 25 acres more or less and we hope to retain the area of the battlefield and Indian Village," he said.

Petaluma Employees End Work Stoppage

Progress Also Reported In Other Strike Areas

Petaluma's 45 striking city maintenance workers, faced with possible contempt of court citations and the possible loss of their jobs, went back to work today, ending a two-day work stoppage.

Breakthroughs occurred in two other local strikes as well. The laborers early this morning reached tentative agreement with the building contractors, and the machinists late this morning began negotiations with officials from McNear's brick works in San Rafael.

When copies were distributed to picketing workers yesterday, they also were given a letter from City Mgr. Robert H. Meyer which stated they would face disciplinary action including a one-step pay reduction if they did not report in by Friday.

Meyer's letter threatened further action, including possible dismissal, if the strikers held out longer.

Judge Murphy set a hearing for July 15 for the workers to argue that they are entitled to strike under state law. The city has maintained the strike was illegal.

Meyer said the strikers informed him they were suspending their strike pending the court hearing.

Still unresolved is the contention of the employees that they should receive 11 per cent pay raises rather than the 8 per cent which the city granted them.

The workers, all members of Local 956 of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, work in the streets, sewer, water and parks departments. During their absence managerial workers stepped in to keep the city functioning.

"I look on this as something like with members of a family," Meyer said today. "Some people get a little hot under the Federal Study Criticizes Marin City Hiring System

By PAUL LIBERATORE

A federal agency's investigation has revealed that the Marin County Housing Authority used "questionable methods" and "was remiss" in providing information to Marin City residents on job opportunities in the authority's $470,000 project to modernize public housing apartments.

The revelations are contained in a confidential report by investigators for the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission's regional office in San Francisco.

Requirements for hiring local residents in modernization jobs are contained in the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968. These requirements were clearly spelled out in a March 15 memorandum to the Marin County Housing Authority from the area director of the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

The memo says: "Local housing authorities, in administering the modernization program, will give priority to qualified residents in the hiring of all personnel and will make available to individual tenants all pertinent information, such as qualifications, remuneration, application procedures, etc., after posting or otherwise advertising this information to the total tenant community."

The federal act also requires that to the greatest extent feasible, opportunities for training be given to lower income persons living in the vicinity of the project.

According to the EEOC report: "Our investigation has revealed that no consideration has been given to the possibility of training Marin City residents by either the local housing authority or the contractors."

Investigators concluded that the ultimate objective of providing employment for residents was met in filling two jobs as tenant aide and maintenance man, which were added in connection with the modernization work.

"However," the report adds, "the methods used are questionable. The manner of disseminating information regarding these positions to the Marin City community is questionable.

"The housing authority appointed, or selected, tenants to form a modernization committee, one of whose functions was to inform the community of job opportunities in relation to the modernization project. The investigation was not able to clearly document the extent to which this information was passed on to the community by this committee.

"For example, the position of tenant aide was filled by one of the modernization committee members. There were no other applications made available to the investigators to document the fact that other applicants had been considered for the position."

The investigation also concludes that the housing authority "is remiss in not providing

Dignitaries Attend Mrs King's Funeral

ATLANTA (UPI) — Mrs. Martin Luther King Sr., slain last Sunday by a gunman, was memorialized today in funeral services attended by Mrs. Gerald Ford, wife of the vice president, and many of those who waged the civil rights struggle with her martyred son.

The more than 600 persons who crowded into the small Ebenezer Baptist Church for the eulogies included black congressmen, mayors and other dignitaries, some of whom had marched with the late Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

North Marin District Eases Connection Ban

The North Marin County Water District loosened up its moratorium on new connections last night, releasing enough water to serve the equivalent of 398 homes. (Another water district story, page 17.)

After a public hearing which attracted a sparse audience, all in favor of releasing the water, the district board voted unanimously to make it available.

The action came after Dist. Mgr. John O. Nelson reported the district expects to have enough water available between now and mid-1977 when the new Russian River intertie is completed, to serve the equivalent of 398 dwelling units.

(The equivalent system is based on water use in a single-family detached home, with apartment units, townhouses, condominiums calculated at less usage per unit.)

The moratorium enacted in May 1973, provides that as water becomes available, the district will serve applicants for connections in order.

Nelson estimated that the new connections made available will last until late this fall and no more are expected until mid-1977.

Directors last night approved water service water agreements for 12 projects representing 225 equivalent units, immediately reducing the number still available, and projects representing another 35 equivalent units are pending.

Director William W. Wright said "any criticism that we have sold out" to big developers would be wrong since the list of projects approved and pending are those of "local residents and small developers and will provide employment."

John Novak, a Novato developer, had urged release of the water "so the moratorium on building is ended."

Directors also passed an ordinance prohibiting the commitment of the additional water for irrigation of any parcel larger than five acres.

Nelson said it would prohibit the use of "finished water" to irrigate such projects as freeway landscaping and the proposed Hanna Ranch golf course, where it has been proposed that reclaimed water be used for irrigation.

The district will serve existing users such as Indian Valley Golf Course and will honor its commitment to Indian Valley Colleges, he said.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Area Sealed Off

BELFAST (UPI) — British troops today sealed off another large area of downtown Belfast to cars and trucks after receiving reports that the Irish Republican Army intended to bomb the heart of the city, security sources said.

Shortly after dawn soldiers carrying rifles erected barricades on all streets entering Donegal Place, a store-lined square covering a four-block area and the site of City Hall.

They permitted only city buses and vehicles with special passes to drive through the barbed-wire barricades, and those that did get through were checked thoroughly.

Security sources said the new measures — which are to continue indefinitely — were ordered after military intelligence received word that the IRA planned to bomb the Donegal square area.

Blast Kills 15

BILBAO, Spain (UPI) — An explosion possibly touched off by high summer temperatures rocked a dynamite factory yesterday, killing a number of persons in the plant and its environs.

Police said 15 died and more than 130 others were injured, 15 of them seriously, when the blast erupted at the Union de Explosivos Riotinto factory in nearby Galdacano.

The explosion blew out walls and doors in neighboring buildings and broke windows in an area stretching several miles, police said.

Ford Hikes Prices

DETROIT (UPI) — The Ford Motor Co. yesterday raised prices of its cars and trucks an average of $58, saying it could not continue to absorb higher costs for steel and other materials.

Ford's action followed similar pricing moves by Chrysler Corp. last week, within days of higher prices announced by major steelmakers.

Chrysler increased its average prices by $60 while General Motors and American Motors have yet to react to the higher steel prices.

Viets Clash

SAIGON (UPI) — South Vietnamese and Communist armies clashed across the marshland north of Saigon today in the 50th day of the longest and heaviest battle since the 1973 truce agreement.

A Saigon military command spokesman said the 10,000-man Communist force around captured Base 82 was still holding off counterattacks by a giant government task force of 25,000 men.

In Cambodia, about 2,500 government troops backed by fighter-bombers, armored personnel carriers and artillery launched a new drive yesterday toward the provincial capital of Oudong.

The task force's initial objective was Chetares Hill, overlooking Oudong, 18 miles north of Phnom Penh near the Tonle Sap River.

The insurgent capture of Oudong on March 18, the fourth anniversary of the overthrow of Prince Norodom Sihanouk, was a major embarrassment to the government.

Earl Warren Hospitalized

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Retired Chief Justice Earl Warren, 83, who presided over the Supreme Court during some of its most turbulent years, was listed in fair condition today after entering a hospital Tuesday with a heart ailment.

Warren

His condition was diagnosed by Dr. Oscar Mann as congestive heart failure and coronary insufficiency. It was his second hospitalization in six weeks.

Warren, former governor of California and chief justice of the United States from 1953 to 1969, was admitted to Georgetown University Hospital for an indefinite stay.

A hospital spokesman said the ailment was less serious than what is commonly called a heart attack and that Warren was recovering satisfactorily. The hospital was expected to begin issuing regular medical bulletins today.

Strategy Change

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI) — George Wallace has decided to give up his efforts to win control of the Democratic Party miniconvention this year and instead keep a low profile in an effort to draw out voter support for 1976.

Wallace is expected to address the convention in St. Louis this fall, but he told his staff it would cost more than he was willing to spend to win a majority of delegates and would only harden his opposition.

He said he did not want to propose his program two years in advance of the presidential nominating convention and feared that the whipping his delegates were taking in some states might be viewed as an erosion of his support.

The governor's aides say he will stay out of sight for most of the year in an attempt to create a "hunger" on the part of the voters and to avoid drawing out his opponents.

Army Control

ADDIS ABABA (UPI) — The armed forces eased the tight military grip on the Ethiopian capital today, but rounded up more former members of the government on corruption charges.

In a communique, the military reduced a dusk to dawn curfew by one hour, from 6 a.m. to 5 a.m., to allow early morning workers to report to their jobs.

At the same time, an armed forces committee that seized control of Ethiopia Friday reported a continuing roundup of persons on a list of more than 200 former officials, noblemen and landowners.

Sea Battle

SEOUL (UPI) — A South Korean patrol boat sank an armed North Korean vessel in the second naval battle between the two countries in four days, the Seoul government said today.

One South Korean sailor was killed and three others were wounded Tuesday night in the Sea of Japan clash some 10 miles off the southern port city of Pusan, a Defense Ministry spokesman said.

The military spokesman said he did not know how many Communist crewmen were aboard the unidentified North Korean ship.

The South Korean gunboat was patrolling the Sea of Japan when it challenged an unidentified vessel that looked like a fishing boat, the spokesman said.

The other craft defied the challenge and the crew opened fire with 7.62mm rifles, he said.

Mrs. King Honored

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The Board of Supervisors voted yesterday to name the children's clinic at Martin Luther King Jr. Hospital after the slain civil rights leader's mother who was shot to death in her church Sunday.

Anticlergy Death Ring Suspected

DAYTON, Ohio (UPI) — Dayton police today were investigating the possibility of a connection between the shooting death of Mrs. Martin Luther King Sr. in Atlanta and the unsolved murder of two black ministers in the Dayton area.

Officials said they wanted question Marcus Wayne Chenault, 23, Dayton, charged with the murder of Mrs. King and a church deacon in a wild shooting spree Sunday, about the slayings of Rev. William Wright, 56, May 12, and Rev. Eugene Johnson Sr., 29, June 3.

Chenault yesterday wasrepored to be a member of a group of black militants which believed blacks were being misled by their ministers and should be punished.

Columbus police discovered a list of 10 names, including several prominent black ministers, which they said may have been a death list, in Chenault's Columbus apartment. Chenault lived in Columbus while a student at Ohio State University.

Randolph Bacote, Chenault's attorney, however, said Chenault told him he did not discuss his plans with anyone, but admitted his original target had been Martin Luther King Sr. and not his wife.

MARCUS WAYNE CHENAULT
Other deaths linked?

Bacote said Chenault denied being a member of "The Troop," the name given the black militant group by a source quoted by the Dayton Journal Herald who said he was a close friend of Chenault's.

Bacote said Chenault told him he knew nothing at all of the organization.

"He said he wanted it that way. He felt if he talked about it to others, especially blacks, that it would eventually get back to 'the man,'" Bacote said. "He told me he kept it to himself so that his mission would not be destroyed."

President, Brezhnev Could Try A Duet?

MOSCOW (UPI) — President Nixon told guests at a glittering state dinner last night he had discovered he and Leonid Brezhnev had something in common.

"The general secretary and I both studied piano as young boys," the President said. "Just think what would have happened had we both become piano players! Music's loss was detente's gain."

Arabs Meet On Israeli Air Attacks

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Defense and foreign ministers of the 20-nation Arab League gathered today in an emergency conference in Cairo to discuss joint action for the protection of Lebanon against Israeli attacks. Those actions could range from another oil embargo to ringing Lebanese refugee camps with SAM missiles.

Political sources in Cairo said Lebanon would call for an Arab boycott of the Geneva Middle East peace talks unless the explosive Palestinian refugee question is added to the agenda. Lebanon also was expected to raise the question of possible reimposition of the Arab oil embargo.

In Tel Aviv, the Israeli newspaper Ma'ariv accused the Egyptian army of building fortifications in the Sinai peninsula that encroach on the U.N. buffer zone separating it from Israeli forces near the Suez Canal. However there was no indication the reported move had brought any new crisis to that cease-fire line.

The Arab League called the Cairo conference at the urging of oil-rich Kuwait after a series of Israeli attacks on Palestinian refugee camps and other installations in Lebanon killed more than 80 Palestinians and wounded more than 200.

The most recent major Israeli attack was on June 20 — two days after President Nixon headed home from his Middle East peace tour. Israeli warplanes attacked four refugee camps in South Lebanon, killing 30 and wounding 122.

Viet Cong Balky On GI Body Hunt

SAIGON (UPI) — The first U.S. congressman to meet with the Viet Cong since the cease-fire in Vietnam said today the Communists consider the question of missing Americans "a small issue."

Rep. G.V. Montgomery, D-Miss., told a news conference, "We must use negotiation, pressure or whatever it takes."

"There is no reason we can't get these bodies out and get this resolved," he said.

Montgomery said he told Viet Cong Col. Vo Tho Son today that "this is a major topic in the United States. He said it was a small issue."

The congressman talked for 65 minutes with Son, chief Viet Cong negotiator at the stalled talks aimed at accounting for missing Americans, at the Communists' Saigon compound at the edge of Tan Son Nhut airbase.

North Vietnamese officers in Saigon refused to meet with Montgomery in Saigon, but told him to talk with Hanoi officials in Vientiane, Laos. Montgomery leaves Saigon for Laos tomorrow.

"North Vietnam definitely, and probably the PRG (Viet Cong) have good information on our MIAs, (missing in action) Montgomery said.

"It is going to be hard work," he said. "But it can be solved, to get these bodies recovered."

More than 1,100 Americans are still listed as missing from the Indochina conflict. Another 1,200 have been declared dead, but their bodies have not been recovered.

Montgomery said he intended to discuss the idea of a third party's discussing the MIA issue with the Communists, but said Son had indicated the Viet Cong would refuse to discuss the issue with any other nation.

The Communists broke off MIA talks June 23 for political reasons and have given no hint as to when they might return to the conference table.

The Mississippi Democrat said he had found no information that any missing American —with the exception of civilian pilot Emmet Kay held in Laos —was still alive.

"Of all the information I have gathered, there is no concrete information on Americans, military or civilian, alive in South Vietnam," the congressman said.

"This doesn't mean we should stop looking. If we could recover American bodies in contested and Viet Cong areas, we could probably clear up a number of questions on MIAs."

Montgomery said Son told him the Viet Cong would allow no more searches for American bodies in its areas until the Vietnam war ends.

Prince's Friend Cleared Of Charge

LONDON (UPI) — Lady Jane Wellesley, once considered the favorite girlfriend of Prince Charles, will not be prosecuted for drunken driving, police told her Monday.

They said a breath test given to the 23-year-old noblewoman when police stopped her car proved negative. Charges may be brought for alleged speeding, police said.

Cotati Triples Budget To Replace Water System

By ERNEST MURPHY

A proposed 1974-75 budget of $1.5 million, more than triple this year's spending program, was presented last night to the Cotati City Council.

Main reason for the eye-opening size of the increase, City Manager Robert A. Switzer told the council, is the city's need for a new water system to replace the present one, which springs a dozen leaks a week, lacks capacity and is inadequate for fire protection.

Rebuilding the system will cost $825,000, city officials have calculated. Switzer said he hopes to obtain grants from the Federal Farm Home Administration to help pay for the system.

Ideally, he said, the city will be able to finance the project through a combination of federal grants and a special revenue bond issue, also federally subsidized.

Switzer said the huge budget increase is necessary because Cotati faces the future with limited revenues and massive demands for services.

Most of the city's spending program, he said, is financed by state and federal grants, with property taxes carrying only about 5 per cent of the load. If Cotati is unable to obtain the grants or low-interest bonds it needs to finance the water system and other increases which account for the tripled spending program, Switzer warned, substantial cuts will be necessary.

Councilman Geoffrey Dunham said the city's tax rate of $1.25 per $100 assessed property value will probably be unchanged despite the projected budget's size.

Before discussing the budget, the council voted unanimously to place the water bond issue on the Nov. 5 general election ballot.

Switzer said that, unlike general obligation bonds which are imposed on a governing body's entire tax base, revenue bonds are paid off strictly through the revenue received by the agency they support.

In Cotati's case, he said, water customers would pay off the bonds through monthly service charges.

The city manager explained that a substantial portion of the city's water revenue is now spent on maintenance of the decrepit old system.

He and other officials last night said Cotati spends about $40,000 annually on repairs, and bonding experts calculate the city would have to pay $48,000 a year over a 30-year period to pay off a federally subsidized bond issue.

Thus, according to Switzer no major water rate increases would be necessitated by the massive reconstruction project.

The council continued hearings on the budget to its July 16 meeting, when adoption of the budget will be considered.

A breakdown of the proposed budget (with each department's 1973-74 allocation in parentheses) shows:

Council, $2,200 ($1,900); city manager-administrative, $34,530 ($30,691); city manager-clerk, $9,184 (0); city manager-treasurer, $20,162 ($8,659); city attorney, $7,900 ($11,120); planning commission, $25,638 ($7,075); general government buildings, $17,300 ($10,947); nondepartmental, $54,421 ($37,553); police, $120,020 ($94,924); engineering, $7,425 ($9,275); streets, $134,600 ($50,706); water, $917, 839 ($83,820); sewer, $75,400 ($74,664); parks and recreation, $64,304 ($22,416).

Pretty Rough To Ticket Wasp

LOWPOINT, Ill. (UPI) — This town proved to be the low point for delivery truck driver Pat Kellerstrass, 18, yesterday.

Kellerstrass told police he was trying to shoo a wasp away from his face and lost control of his truck on Illinois Highway 89. The vehicle careened off the road and crashed into a tree, smashing a refrigeration unit behind the cab.

Kellerstrass was shaken up, but not hurt.

The wasp stayed in the cab until it was driven out by a wrecker crew. State police trooper R.E. Fitzmaurice said, "I'd ticket the wasp if I could find it."

Blaze Contained

RED BLUFF (UPI) — About 300 firefighters today brought under control a raging brush and grass fire which charred 7,300 acres 36 miles west of this Northern California community.

Rohnert Park Gets Higher Budget

A proposed 1974-75 budget of $1.6 million has been presented to the Rohnert Park City Council.

City Mgr. Peter M. Callinan said the increase over the 1973-74 figure of $1.2 million was due mainly to the inclusion of additional water wells, large sewer mains and other major capital improvements.

The city tax rate of $1.57 per $100 of assessed property value will either stay constant or decline several cents, Callinan said, and he expects an increase of about 20 per cent in the city's assessed property value.

The city manager told the council Monday the proposed budget would allow an increase in municipal services to accommodate Rohnert Park's growing population.

At the last count, in November 1973, the population was 11,500, a 33 per cent increase over the November 1972 figure of 8,675.

City Clerk Kathryn P. Logue said the council will hold study sessions on the budget between now and its July 15 meeting date, when it hopes to adopt a final budget.

General government, $441,895 ($327,406); public safety, $378,460 ($306,305); public works, $445,905 ($323,865); health, $20 ($20); youth advisory panel, $2,000 (0); cultural arts, $1,635 ($2,200); parks and recreation, $194,225 ($129,118), and golf course, $163,215 ($154,595).

Novatan Hurt In Wreck

Clark Jacobson, 46, of Novato was reported in good condition today at Marin General Hospital with a broken arm and head cuts received in an accident at 1:45 a.m. today on northbound Highway 101 near Corte Madera.

The Highway Patrol, which had no details of the crash, said the second driver, Barbara R. Wagar, 29, of Mill Valley was uninjured.

Jacobson was arrested after the accident on suspicion of drunken driving and booked in absentia into Marin County Jail.

Lions Club Chicken Barbecue Tomorrow

The fourth annual chicken barbecue of the Corte Madera Lions Club was omitted from the list of Fourth of July activities printed Monday in the Independent-Journal.

The barbecue, which raises money for the Lions' various civic projects, will begin tomorrow at 5 p.m. at the Corte Madera Recreation Center. Chicken, corn on the cob, hot rolls and salad will be served.

A special liturgy will be held at St. Rita's Church in Fairfax at 10 a.m. tomorrow, with a color guard from the Marine Corps instructor group in San Rafael commanded by Capt. John W. Moffett.

Arrangements for the observance were made by a committee from San Rafael Elks Lodge and veteran organizations.

At instigation of the Elks and the veteran groups, most Marin mayors have issued a proclamation requesting that both business establishments and citizenry fly U.S. flags on the Fourth, and that all bells and carillons be rung for five minutes beginning at 11 a.m.

Creek Project Foe Sets State Supreme Court Fight

Ross conservationist Peter B. Valentine, stymied by the state Court of Appeals in his effort to quash the final phase of the Corte Madera Creek Flood Control Project, will take his battle to the state Supreme Court.

"We're just putting our heads together on it now and we will take action by the end of July," said Valentine yesterday.

Valentine has until July 31 to petition the Supreme Court for a hearing, according to his lawyer, Douglas P. Ferguson of the San Francisco firm of Ferguson and Capron.

Valentine will be seeking to overturn the June 21 ruling by the Court of Appeals in San Francisco which in turn overruled an earlier decision by Marin Superior Court favorable to him.

The flood control project, begun about 10 years ago, has been completed as far north as Ross. The creek has been widened and its bed covered with concrete to ease winter flooding.

Valentine says a majority of Ross residents opposes the project and argued in court that the Ross Town Council's approval of the project was subject to a public referendum. The appellate court disagreed.

Truth In Frozen Food Dishes Is Beaten By Board

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Supervisor Dianne Feinstein's campaign to force restaurants to tell when they use frozen food has been killed.

The board of supervisor's urban and consumer affairs committee voted unanimously yesterday to table the motion which would have forced notations on menus when frozen foods were used.

"Why should we be the only city in the country that has to tell when we use frozen food?" asked Al Pollack, who owns the Shadows restaurant.

Pollack said most customers don't care, anyway.

He said that from his 27 years in restaurants he had learned that most diners were paying for the atmosphere, the service and the white napkins.

New Mexico Forest Fire Resists Control

CARLSBAD, N.M. (UPI) — Firefighters working through the night failed to control an 11,000-acre forest fire in southeastern New Mexico because of rugged terrain and the erratic fire's behavior.

The blaze, called the Cottonwood Fire, was the latest in a growing series of major forest fires which have struck southern New Mexico and eastern Arizona in the past week.

Probers Say Mitchell Will Give Testimony

WASHINGTON (UPI) — White House lawyers predicted today that former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell probably will testify before the House impeachment panel even though H.R. Haldeman has declined to appear.

James D. St. Clair, President Nixon's chief Watergate lawyer, told reporters he expects Mitchell to discuss whether Nixon was involved in payment of hush money to the Watergate burglars. Some Democratic members of the House Judiciary Committee, however, were skeptical Mitchell would testify.

Meanwhile, Egil Krogh, a co-director of the White House "plumbers" unit, told a federal court jury that he informed Nixon in a letter a year ago he felt responsible for the Ellsberg break-in.

Krogh, who just finished serving four months in prison in connection the Ellsberg break-in, was testifying for the second day at the week-old trial of John D. Ehrlichman and three others charged with violating the rights of the psychiatrist who treated Pentagon Papers defendant Daniel Ellsberg.

Krogh was questioned by prosecution and defense lawyers about a letter he sent Nixon May 9, 1973. Krogh said he wrote the letter because "I felt at the time it was necessary to affirm what I felt my responsibility was regardless of what others had done or not done and leave to others what they felt was appropriate for them."

At one point, the letter said: "...agreement to this mission was my responsibility, a step taken in excess of instructioons, and without the knowledge or permission of any superior."

Prior to today's session of the closed impeachment hearings, St. Clair told reporters he had been in touch with Mitchell's attorney, and said, "I don't expect him (Mitchell) to refuse to testify."

Yesterday, the committee was told that because Haldeman wanted to protect his right to a fair trial on Watergate cover-up charges, he would invoke the Fifth Amendment against self-incrimination if subpoenaed by the committee.

Some members of the committee felt Mitchell, also under indictment for the Watergate cover-up, might refuse to testify as well.

Haldeman's refusal to provide the impeachment panel with information about how the White House staff operated before the Watergate break-in will deny the committee its best evidence as to how much Nixon knew about the bugging and cover-up, said several members.

They said Alexander P. Butterfield, who set up the White House taping system, testified yesterday to Nixon's attention to detail and Haldeman's position as the only aide with constant access to the President.

Although Butterfield never said that Nixon must have known what was going on, Democratic critics on the panel concluded that given Nixon's near obsession for detail —for instance, he would supervise arrangements for dinner table settings —there was no way he could not have known his top aides' were involved in Watergate.

Rep. Walter Flowers, D-Ala., after yesterday's session, called Haldeman "the alter ego of the President."

"So much relates to Haldeman," Rep. Hamilton Fish, R-N.Y., said. "That's the big question mark in the whole thing, the two men spent so much time together."

Former re-election campaign aides Paul L. O'Brien and Frederick C. LaRue were scheduled to testify today about their role in the payment of "hush money" to Watergate conspirator E. Howard Hunt.

In other developments:

The office of Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., confirmed that $190,000 in tax deductions he took for donations of personal papers is under investigation by the Internal Revenue Service, according to CBS News.

A federal judge yesterday refused to bar the Senate Watergate Committee from citing Charles G. "Bebe" Rebozo for contempt for not turning over subpoenaed documents.

Senate sources said a lawyer has been hired by GOP senators to advise them in case Nixon is impeached and a trial held.

traffickers and big users should object to this proposal."

Linda Remy, a member of the drug abuse advisory committee, said she objected to Mrs. Aaron's comments and said she was concerned with "safeguarding the rights of citizens."

She said safeguards should be built into the agency to insure it not become a reincarnation of the old county drug abuse bureau, which was phased out two years ago.

Several supervisors agree. Their position was summed up by Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. who said he had no objection to the new agency "but I want ironclad assurances that it will be dealing with large dealers...and not the kid smoking marijuana for the first time."

Several in the audience said they couldn't support it or oppose it because it hadn't gone through "the planning process." They urged it be delayed until further review.

Mrs. Aaron sparked a sharp reaction from Supervisor Gary T. Giacomini when she said the federal funding might be lost if the project was delayed.

"I object to being whipsawed," he said. "I'll never approve a project unless I know the steps are the right steps."

Supervisor Arnold M. Baptiste said he considered the "major danger is to create a countywide program incrementally without the approval of all elected (city and county) officials — only the police chiefs."

The matter will be back before supervisors July 30 when the drug abuse committee is expected to make its recommendations.

HOUSING

"The establishment of the modernization committee on March 18 and the information regarding job openings, both in the housing authority and with some of the contractors, surfaced at the approximate time that construction on the modernization program was commencing.

"The method used to form the modernization committee and its authority of ultimate approval of applicants for positions with contractors leaves the committee open to criticism," the report says.

According to housing authority Executive Director Wallace K. Shepherd, nine public housing tenants were contacted at random via telephone and asked if they would be interested in serving on a tenant modernization committee. Seven responded and formed the committee.

The report notes that both prime contractors have hired lower-income Marin City residents as part of their work force on the job site. "However," it goes on, "the timing and their initial posture indicate that this hiring was the result of pressure exerted by the community during the early stages of construction. Prior to the start of construction, neither prime contractor made any effort to inform the community of possible job openings."

(In May, a group of Marin City residents picketed the job, protesting that community persons were not being hired for the modernization work.)

In addition, according to the report, three contractors did not comply with federal requirements that between 8.4 and 10.5 per cent of the contractor's work force be minority group members for the life of a federal contract. The percentages apply to all crafts within the work force.

The EEOC investigation was requested by the Marin City Public Housing Tenants Representation Association and the Marin City Council.

Represented by the Legal Aid Society of Marin, both tenant groups filed a lawsuit in federal court in May, charging the housing authority with violating HUD guidelines for employing Marin City residents in modernization work on 102 apartments in the community.

On Monday, the housing authority and legal aid reached an out-of-court settlement of the dispute. The authority board appropriated $20,000 to hire Marin City persons for maintenance jobs. Contractors and subcontractors agreed to hire six more residents. In addition, the housing authority agreed to pay Legal Aid $5,000 for attorney's fees and court costs as a result of the suit.

Taxpayers Rap Budget For Sonoma

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — Sonoma supervisors today were confronted by a roomful of angry taxpayers who told them the county's proposed 1974-75 budget of $71.38 million is proof that county government has gone beyond the public's control.

The citizens who crowded into today's budget hearing, many of them elderly, were members of the Sonoma County Taxpayers' Association.

It president, James H. Broom of Santa Rosa told the board the county is "getting onto a fiscal collision course" because of its increased spending each year.

In the last five years, he charged, the budget has increased 50 per cent while population has grown only by about 10 per cent.

"By any standard," he said, "this is wrong. Compare it with a private company — if your overhead went up 50 per cent while sales increased only 10 per cent, you'd soon be bankrupt."

He pointed out that Sonoma's tax rate of $3.35 per $100 of assessed value is among the highest county rates in the state.

Broom handed the board a list of recommendations which he said will reduce the proposed budget by $4 million if supervisors heed them.

They include establishing a firm dollar limit on spending; making wages for county employees "more realistic" by stopping the annual 6 to 10 per cent increases they have received; stopping the expansion of county government into new programs without relieving the burden on taxpayers elsewhere; selling or leasing to a private firm the county hospital, which he said loses $2.5 million a year.

The chief aim of local government, Broom told the supervisors, is to provide the efficient delivery of services at the least possible cost to the public.

"The time is here" he said, "when you must bite the bullet."

Arrigoni Elected Board Chairman

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Marin County Supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. today was elected board chairman of the Bay Area Air Pollution Control District.

Arrigoni moved up from vice chairman, replacing Santa Rosa City Councilman Gerald M. Poznanovich. The Marin supervisor has been on the district board since 1971.

Also elected unanimously were Mountain View City Councilman William R. Jelavich as vice chairman and Solano County Supervisor Robert Scofield.

Thai Professors Quit In Protest

BANGKOK (UPI) — The entire law faculty at one of Thailand's largest universities has resigned because of "rude and violent" student demonstrations, the dean of the Law Faculty said today.

The dean, Dr. Ukris Mongkolnavin, and the other 18 members of his law faculty at Chulalongkorn University submitted their resignations Tuesday after a small group of students held two days of demonstrations calling for reorganization of the law school's teaching system. One teacher tried to break up a fight between competing student groups, but ended up with several teeth knocked out instead.

U.S., USSR Hit At Sea Meeting

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — China has taken on the United States and the Soviet Union at the United Nations Conference on the Law of the Sea, accusing them of causing "world intranquility."

The political speech yesterday by Chai Shu-Fan, Peking's vice minister for foreign trade, at what is supposed to be a nonpolitical meeting drew angry replies from several of the 147 other delegations.

Congress Prepares To Assist Puzzled Condominium Buyers

The Christian Science Monitor News Service

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Complaints rolling in from purchasers of condominiums who failed to read the fine print in their contracts are prompting legislators to consider laws and regulations to govern the industry.

Several states and a number of counties have adopted regulations. But the rapid growth of condominiums has left most local governments with a regulatory gap.

As a result, moves may develop on the federal level to establish standards for construction and sale of condominiums. The idea would be to protect buyers against the quick-buck artists who occasionally take advantage of the housing shortage and the ignorance of purchasers about this new form of home ownership.

The first bill to regulate condominiums has been introduced in Congress by Rep. Cardiss Collins, D-Ill., who was elected one year ago to succeed her congressman husband. He was killed in the same plane crash that took the life of Mrs. E. Howard Hunt, wife of the Watergate figure.

Mrs. Collins got interested in the housing subject when constituents began complaining about being turned out of their rented apartments with little notice as buildings were converted into condominiums.

Mrs. Collins charges that "in certain instances" condo buyers are stuck with ramshackle construction, and maintenance fees and real estate taxes that exceed the seller's projections. Sometimes buyers think they have purchased a share in the recreational facilities and later find out there are extra costs involved. In one instance, she said, the developer made a 50,000 per cent profit on the recreational facilities alone.

An official of the Department of Housing and Urban Development says he figures "the pressure for federal regulation will mount because of the letters congressmen are starting to get."

The department, however, has shown no interest in moving into the field. Secretary James T. Lynn indicates the administration would prefer to leave it up to state and local governments if possible.

Florida, which has gone through a rash of condo scandals, has adopted some regulations.

Montgomery County, a suburb of Washington, D.C., recently passed a "condominium purchasers bill of rights." It requires owners who are converting rental apartments to condominiums to give tenants six months' notice and to make reports on the financial aspects of the conversation. But apparently only a few states have taken action so far.

Mrs. Collins' bill would provide for an assistant secretary for condominiums in HUD to develop regulations. Her bill would require adequate notice to renters being ousted.

It would also set some standards for condos built with federal assistance, including a year's warranty on the structure and appliances, written estimates of operating and maintenance costs, and clear statements of recreational fees and other financial aspects.

Since contracts governing sale and governance of the condominiums, which are run by a board of apartment owners after the developer gets out, may run 100 pages, few purchasers are sophisticated enough to know exactly what they are getting into.

Federal involvement in the problem so far has been minimal. HUD will shortly publish a 47-page booklet called "Questions About Condominiums" as a guide to buyers. But it has little authority to prevent abuses.

The Federal Trade Commission also has conducted a study of condominium problems in Florida with a view to possible regulations dealing with deceptive practices.

The Securities and Exchange Commission recently proposed some policy changes regarding condominiums sold as investments.

With approval of the Federal Reserve Board, the SEC is planning to exempt condominium securites from the Fed's margin rule (affecting the amount of credit that can be extended). The SEC also proposed easing its policy to enable real estate promoters to help condominium buyers find mortgage financers.

The condo craze has swept the country faster than ability of government to catch up with possible abuses. A few years ago condominiums were few and far between; this year 14 per cent of new housing starts will be condos and in some major cities half or more of the new housing units are condos.

While most condominium projects are undertaken by reputable builders, the abuses, says Representative Collins, are "a growing and serious problem." A companion bill to that of Mrs. Collins is soon to be introduced in the Senate. But there has not yet been any move for hearings in the Senate and House Banking Committees, which deal with housing legislation.

STRIKES

collar — we had our differences but they're back to work." (Meanwhile, in Fresno today, according to United Press International, police arrested 175 striking blue collar city workers when they blocked city buses and garbage trucks from leaving the city vehicle yard.

The workers, already defying a court order calling for them to return to work, were charged with unlawful assembly. They were expected to be released later in the day without bail.

(The city service and maintenance employees walked off their jobs Monday, demanding 60-cent hourly pay increases plus an 8.5 per cent cost-of-living raise next July 1.)

(In Oakland, according to the Associated Press, negotiations in the three-day-old AC Transit drivers strike resumed under a union threat that the walkout could be a long one unless the company "gets down to the nuts and bolts."

The Laborers Union, which last week joined the carpenters' walkout against the Associated General Contractors, reached agreement with the AGC at about 3 a.m. today, a union spokesman said.

Both sides refused to reveal terms of the agreement, which still must be ratified by the 14,000 union members in Marin and 45 other Northern California counties. Voting is expected to be completed early next week.

An AGC spokesman said negotiators for the laborers had released their membership to return to work immediately and that most should be returned by next Monday.

The Carpenters Union, also striking the AGC, is far from agreement, and no negotiations are scheduled. The walkout is three weeks old, with several major projects stalled in Marin.

San Rafael-based Local 238 of the Machinists Union was to meet at 10 a.m. today with McNear's brickyard officials in hopes of ending that walkout, now in its second day.

"We hope it won't take more than one meeting," said Thomas A. Bevas, business representative for the local. "We'd like to get the people back to work."

Hopes for settlement in the machinists' strike against the auto repair shops were dimmer. Auto dealers were to meet this morning to hammer out their position, according to a spokesman for the California Association of Employers.

"We are hoping to hear their position today, but we don't expect any agreement at least until next week because of the (Fourth of July) holiday," said Lester B. Young, business representative for the machinists.

Young said approximately 70 of Marin's 130 body shops have joined the strike, and that picket lines were being honored by other unions.

Marinites Win Horse Show Events

George Tuttle of San Rafael, riding Real Apollo, won both western pleasure categories — 17-and-under and open — and Carolyn Frym of Novato, riding Lady, took the junior showman and 4-H junior showman competition.

Other Marin winners and their mounts were:

Maiden jumpers — M. M. Childes of San Rafael on Hidden Talent.

the law requires signatures equal to at least 10 per cent of the number of registered voters who cast ballots in the last gubernatorial election.

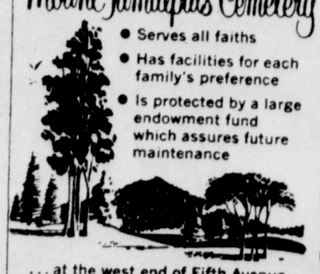

To qualify for the November ballot, 7,649 signatures are necessary, she said.

She said Sonoma supervisors argue that voters are too unconcerned to study the facts about the dam and make a wise choice. They also claim, she said, that the public wants the decision made for it by its county representatives.

Sonomans have been deprived of the facts, she said, "because (they) have been smothered under waves of pompous double-talk from the county and scare statements and propaganda" from the Santa Rosa Press-Democrat.

The initiative petition is the latest sortie in the task force's effort to block the dam in the Dry Creek Valley.

The signatures were collected during the last month by about 350 volunteers, Mrs. Warner said.

Arrests Aimed At Crime Wave

GUADALAJARA, Mexico (UPI) — Federal police and Mexican army troops began a massive roundup of suspected criminals today in an attempt to halt a growing crime wave in Mexico's second largest city.

Two professional soccer players and a student leader were gunned down on the streets in unsolved murders in June. Local residents have also complained about a wave of gangsterism, including smuggling of guns and narcotics and selling "protection" to local merchants. Student politics at the state-financed Autonomous University of Guadalajara have caused several deaths.

Cuban Embassy In Paris Bombed

PARIS (UPI) — A bomb exploded today in front of the Cuban Embassy, causing serious damage but no casualties, radio broadcasts said.

Witnesses said an unidentified man put a bag outside the building, rang the bell and fled. The bomb, six to nine ounces of plastic, destroyed the front door of the embassy and shattered all the windows of a building facing the embassy. Half a dozen parked cars suffered damage.

OBITUARIES

EDWARD W. COLTHURST

Mass of Christian Burial for Edward W. Colthurst, former Corte Madera mayor and long-time town council member, will be at 10 a.m. Friday at St. Hilary's Catholic Church in Tiburon.

The Rosary will be recited at Russell and Gooch Funeral home in Mill Valley at 8 p.m. today. Burial will be in Mount Tamalpais Cemetery.

Colthurst, 65, died yesterday, apparently of a heart attack.

He served on the Corte Madera Town Council 15 years and also participated in many other civic activities. For the past few years he was executive director of the Marin Property Owners Association.

He is survived by his wife, Ivy of the family home in Corte Madera; a daughter, Robin, and a son, Dennis, both of Larkspur; two brothers, Wallace Colthurst of Larkspur and Harry Colthurst of San Francisco, and two sisters, Isabel Colthurst of San Francisco and Sister Mary Benigna of Los Gatos.

The family prefers memorial gifts to the Crippled Children's Service, Marin County Health Department.

LOLA C. WEBB

Lola C. Webb of Larkspur died yesterday in a local hospital after a long illness.

Mrs. Webb, 79, of 48 Locust Avenue, was a homemaker and wife of the late Leo W. Webb, a retired commercial artist who died in 1967.

A native of Austria, she moved to Marin in 1958. Mrs. Webb was active in senior citizens' groups in the county.

Surviving are a son, Kurtis T. Webb of Tiburon, three grandchildren and a great-grandchild.

Memorial service will be at 3 p.m. Saturday at the Methodist Church of Mill Valley. Burial will be at Mount Tamalpais Cemetery in San Rafael. The family requests memorial gifts to a favorite charity.

current SALT treaty should be replaced by one expiring in 1985 and that negotiations in Geneva should convene in the "immediate future," possibly in August.

Kissinger said if there is no agreement by 1977, when the present pact runs out, there will be "an explosion of technology and numbers."

"If we don't solve this problem well before the end of the expiration of the agreement, we will be living in a world in which the opportunities for nuclear war exist at levels unimaginable 15 years ago...the numbers of missiles will be astronomical," he said.

"We are not concerned with the present generation of MIRV, but with the next generation. "My impression is that both sides have to convince their military establishments of the benefits of restraint, and that does not come easily on either side."

The Nixon-Brezhnev communique covered a wide range of issues. The two men:

Agreed that the Geneva conference on the Middle East should resume "at the earliest possible date," to take up the question of Palestinian participation and negotiations toward a just and lasting peace."

Called for the fulfillment of peace agreements in Laos and for peace in Cambodia based on respect of the sovereign rights of the Cambodian people without outside interference.

Favored the successful completion of the European Security conference, with a possible summit-level signing.

Confirmed their interest in speeding the U.S.-Soviet 1972 trade agreement, now blocked in Congress by legislators demanding that the Soviets let Jews freely emigrate.

Agreed to allow the opening of two new consulates general, in Kiev and New York.

$26 Million Marin Transit Tag

I-J Special Report

BERKELEY — More than $26 million should be spent to improve Marin transit over the next decade, the staff of the Metropolitan Transportation Commission has proposed.

New taxes probably will be needed to pay for the vastly expanded transit facilities, the staff said.

The proposed improvements would be in addition to almost $21 million to be spent on new buses and ferries by the Golden Gate Bridge District, according to the staff.

Its proposals came in draft revisions to the commission's 1973 regional transportation plan. Annual revisions are required by state law.

Hearings on the changes will be held throughout the region before commission action. The hearing closest to Marin will be at 8 p.m. on July 17 in the auditorium at Fireman's Fund Insurance, 3333 California Street, San Francisco.

The proposals call for spending $2.5 million a year for the next three fiscal years, starting now, then another $7.5 million through 1984, all on improved transit service within the county.

The staff also suggested $10 million be spent between 1978 and 1984 to expand express bus service across the Golden Gate to San Francisco, and $400,000 this fiscal year for bus service across the Richmond-San Rafael Bridge. (A private company started this service on Monday.)

Proposed improvements throughout the region included $1.1 million for recreational transit and $4.2 million for "special transit needs." A commission spokesman said these two figures for spending over the decade also covered services in Marin, but said further details were incomplete.

The staff proposals come on the heels of last month's rejection by Marin voters of a 20-cent increase in the property tax rate to improve local bus transit.

The staff report suggested that revenue to support its proposed transit improvements come from "federal funds, bonding on a large scale, and probably new taxes."

The commission already is on record favoring an additional sales tax to finance transit, and has said other possible sources of funds include a gasoline tax increase, property tax and income tax.

The staff report also said additional sources of funds could include doubling bridge tolls and transit fares.

As noted in the first version of the plan adopted last year, the staff estimated $13 billion will be needed by 1990 in the Bay Area to build highway and transit projects. Maintenance and operation of the transportation system will reach $500 million a year by then, it predicted.

The $6 billion cost for new highways will be met largely by expected funds, the staff said, but present sources of funding for transit at best cover only 20 per cent of the remaining $7 billion cost.

Hub Council Taking Austere Budget Stand

"This is not the year," San Anselmo city councilman John H. Colteaux said. "If you want a slogan for these council hearings: this is not the year for many things."

Taking a first look last night at the city's proposed $2,108,641 budget, the San Anselmo City Council rejected all major additional requests — totaling about $37,500 —from the police and library departments.

City Administrator-controller Alfred C. Kaeppel warned the council the proposed budget already stretches the San Anselmo tax rate to a maximum $2.51 per $100 assessed valuation — up 16 cents from this fiscal year.

(San Anselmo is able to raise the tax rate under terms of a complicated "inflation factor" provided by state law, Kaeppel explained. He said the city has experienced a 59-person drop in population over the last year, coupled with an 8.63 per cent cost-of-living increase and a mere 2.2 per cent increase in assessed valuation.)

(A county spokesman explained that only a small portion of the city was reassessed this year due to a shortage of manpower.)

With the tax rate at its limit and any budget allocation from tax funds demanding a matching reduction, the council was twice drawn toward use of its only liquid assets — approximately $50,000 remaining in this year's federal revenue sharing funds.

The council deadlocked on a 2-to-2 vote (Mayor Martin G. Blinder absent) on a motion to grant a $5,000 compromise — down from a $10,000 request — for the purchase and replacement of library books.

The council also appeared close to granting a request from Police Chief Raymond R. Buchignani for an extra officer — at a cost of about $16,500 per year — to work the understaffed graveyard shift.

Buchignani said that San Anselmo, with 17 officers, lags behind Sausalito and Mill Valley, both smaller cities, with 21 and 23 police officers respectively.

"And our arrest record shows that our problems are just as severe as theirs," he said. "I believe we are undermanned."

The council agreed that taxpayers soon would have to bear the burden of an expanded police force. However, two separate motions to approve hiring a new officer died for want of a second.

A single concession was granted during the night's debate. An additional $120 per year allowance — bringing the total to $720 — was granted Buchignani for upkeep on his personal car, which is used for stakeouts and informal rendezvous where a squad car is inappropriate.

The council adjourned to its next meeting — to be held next Wednesday at 8 p.m. in Robson House — where it will discuss the parks and recreation department section of the budget.

Teacher Won't Be Returning Due To Layout

GREENDALE, Wis. (UPI) — Barbie Lewandowski, the subject of an 18-page nude picture article in this month's issue of Penthouse, won't be returning to her job as a teacher's aide in this Milwaukee suburb.

William Knapp, the school superintendent, yesterday said Miss Lewandowski and he agreed two weeks ago it wouldn't be in the best interest of Greendale High School for her to return to work.

"I'd guess that if the magazine got into the hands of the kids it would be somewhat embarrasing to her," said Donald Baumgart, principal of the school she worked at. "I think it might bother some of the kids and affect their demeanor in school."

Science To Aid Beauty Pageant

MANILA (UPI) — A team of Philippine Air Force weather experts will try to prevent rain in Manila July 21, the same day the 1974 Miss Universe beauty pageant holds its final competition.

"Unless a storm brews, chances of success are high," said Maj. Roger De La Cruz, operations officer of the National Artificial Rain Stimulation Committee.

De La Cruz told newsmen an air force C47 transport and three Cessna 210s light planes would "seed" cloud banks within a radius of 125 miles of Manila four days before the event to induce rains in outlying areas and prevent them from reaching the city.

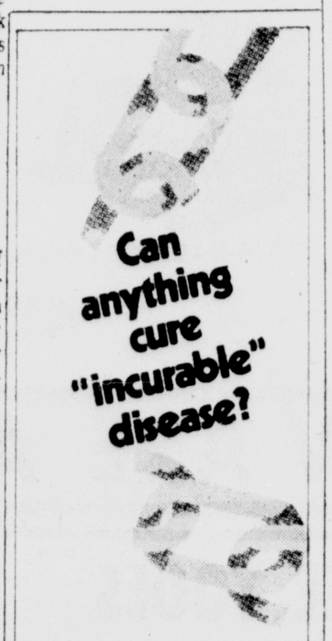

Safety System For BART Tube Wins Approval

OAKLAND (UPI) — The state Public Utilities Commission gave its approval yesterday for a safety system in the Bay Area Rapid Transit District's tube between San Francisco and Oakland.

Approved were electronic stopping places between stations where trains can be halted when a computer determines the track ahead is not clear.

PUC members have prohibited BART from opening the transbay tube until they are satisfied it meets safety requirements.

The stopping system was an anti-collision plan developed from recommendations from the University of California's Lawrence Laboratory in Berkeley.

A LOVE AFFAIR

I'm delighted that summer is finally here. It gives me a chance to talk about a fellow native of La Habra, California, the Hass avocado. An avocado seed from an unknown source was planted by a retired Pasadena postman, Rudolph Hass (rhymes with lass), back in the twenties. From that seed grew an erect tree which produced a dark, rough-skinned fruit. The flesh had a splendid texture and flavor. But the most unusual feature was the size of the seed. Most seedling avocados have huge seeds, but this "Hass" variety had an unusually small one. Buds from this original tree in La Habra were taken to start hundreds of young trees, and now the Hass is the favorite summer variety around the world.

The California Avocado Advisory Board tells us that a bumper crop is expected for this year. That's good news. The avocado can be the basis of all sorts of summertime menus.

There are many mistaken ideas about the avocado. It has been called the "love fruit" by advertisers, a romantic idea, but without foundation. Many also think that the fruit is loaded with calories and can't be used in diets. Actually, there are only 132 calories in an average avocado half, and it's excellent nutrition — loaded with vitamins and minerals — and no cholesterol.

Here is a simple, but elegant party dip.

CREAMY AVOCADO DIP
1 large ripe avocado
1 small package cream cheese
½ tsp. lemon juice
½ tsp. garlic salt, or to taste
¼ cup milk

Peel avocado — cut into large slices and put into blender. Add milk, blend, add cream cheese which has been broken into large pieces, along with garlic salt and lemon. Blend until smooth. If the dip is made several hours ahead of time, to prevent discoloration, drop the avocado seed into the dip and cover tightly.

New Zealand May Set Up Kibbutzim

WELLINGTON, New Zealand (AP) — New Zealand's labor government is considering establishing two Israel-type kibbutzim on undeveloped land.

Prime Minister Norman E. Kirk said: "There are signs that many young people are feeling disillusioned with society because they are not participating in its development. By establishing kibbutzim we will be telling these young people: 'Here is a settlement, let's see what you can do out of the wilderness.' "

Larkspur School Budget Of $2.3 Million Passes

A 1974-75 publication budget of $2,321,978, unchanged from a tentative budget approved last month, was approved last night by Larkspur School District trustees.

Asst. Supt. Gilbert Slusher said the budget is $27,000 higher than the 1973-74 spending plan but will require no increase in the district tax rate of $3.57 per $100 assessed valuation. He said the rate may actually be cut because of increased assessed valuation.

Trustees will hold a public hearing on the spending plan and adopt a final budget when they next meet Aug. 1 at 8 p.m. in the district office.

The Lakrspur School District board also:

DELEGATE — Nominated Mrs. Walker for an opening on the Marin County School Boards Association Delegate Assembly.

TRANSPORTATION — Accepted the low bid of $29,000 of Engineering Transportation of San Francisco to provide daily bus service to the district. Only other bid was $36,000 by Patchetts Transportation Co. of Richmond.

SUMMER — Were told that 494 children were registered in 20 classes in the district summer school which will end July 19.

TELEVISION — Approved a $386 contract with KQED for educational television for the district's four schools. Half of the sum will be reimbursed by the federal government.

CUSTODIAN — Hired Donald R. Roberts as a custodian at Neil Cummins School for $593 per month.

ADJOURNMENT — Adjourned in memory of Edward W. Colthurst, former Corte Madera mayor, who died yesterday.

Most Of Wilderness Found In The West

DENVER (UPI) — An eight state region in the Mountain West includes more than 56 per cent of the nation's officially designated wilderness and more than 55 per cent of the nation's primitive areas, excluding Alaska.

The eight states encompass only 24 per cent of all U.S. land. Figures were compiled by the Federation of Rocky Mountain States for the region comprising Arizona, Colorado, Idaho, Montana, Nevada, New Mexico, Utah and Wyoming.

Owner Given Five Weeks To Agree On Parking Lot

The Larkspur City Council last night gave a property owner five weeks to talk turkey with the city on leasing his land for a parking lot before the city moves to condemn it.

Councilmen, sitting as the city parking authority, told a representative for Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Schefer that they want to settle "once and for all" the question of whether the land can be leased to the city.

Schefer's property at Magnolia Avenue and Ward Street and another parcel behind it, owned by the Northwestern Pacific Railroad, are needed to help correct a chronic parking shortage in downtown Larkspur, the council said.

Hugh Cadden, representing the Schefers, promised to meet with city staff to discuss a possible lease, and councilmen scheduled a report for their next meeting Aug. 7.

In other action related to parking, the council swiftly and unanimously retracted an earlier decision to acquire yet another parcel.

The council in March adopted a resolution of intent to condemn the property but since then Bissattini had sued the city to block condemnation.

Bissattini also circulated a petition among businessmen in his area, and virtually all of them, 14, signed it, agreeing they need no further parking.

Councilmen said they saw no reason to provide parking if the merchants don't want it.

Musician Faces Court On Taxes

NEW YORK (UPI) — Bandleader Skitch Henderson was accused in an eight-count indictment yesterday of evading more than $100,000 in income taxes by illegally backdating a donation of musical memorabilia to the University of Wisconsin.

If convicted, 56-year-old Lyle C. Henderson, best known as the conductor on NBC-TV's "Tonight Show" with Johnny Carson during the mid-1960's, faces a maximum sentence of five years in prison on each of six counts and three years in prison on each of two counts. Fines could total $38,000.

The charges relate to a purported donation by Henderson of some 1,000 of his original music scores and arrangements to the university.

ORDEAL ENDS — Air Force medics and a pilot assist Mrs. Diane Horne and her 14-year-old son, Gerald Paul, at Tyndall Air Force Base, Fla. The Edward M. Horne family of Houston, Tex., was rescued from the Gulf of Mexico off Florida last night. One son died of shark wounds and another son died, apparently of shock.

Family Battles To Escape Sharks

TYNDALL AIR FORCE BASE, Fla. (UPI) — The sharks, silent, deadly and some 12-feet long, struck during the shipwrecked family's 13th hour in the water.

The crew of a Coast Guard plane overhead could only watch helplessly yesterday as Edward M. Horne, 43, his wife, Diane, 34, and their five children battled the sea's most feared inhabitants.

One huge shark struck 10-year-old Billy Horne, tearing a gaping wound in his arm and shoulder. Another swam through the legs of Mrs. Horne.

But the desperate family, kicking and slapping, warded off their attackers until the plane guided a pleasure boat to their rescue. Help, however, came too late for Billy, who bled to death, and three-year-old Edward Jr., who died of shock and exposure.

"Everybody, beware of the water," said Horne from his hospital bed. "You do not know the sharks are there until they strike."

The Hornes, their two daughters, Diana Jo, 14, and Melissa, 4, and a son, Gerald Paul, 14, were hospitalized last night for shock and exposure.

Horne, a Houston, Tex., motel broker, also suffered severe lacerations on his hands and feet when his 43-foot motor yacht Princess Diane disintegrated in a freak storm Monday night about 35 miles southeast of Carabelle, Fla. The Hornes, who left four other children in Texas, were on a leisurely cruise to the Bahamas.

Despite Coast Guard and weather bureau forecasts of "beautiful weather," Horne said the yacht was struck by a storm two hours out of port.

"Waves were coming clear up over the flying bridges. The waves were 12 to 15 feet over the boat. It literally ripped off the cabin. We sank in 15 minutes."

Horne sent out a distress call over his radio and equipped his family with lifejackets. They tied themselves together with a rope connected to a life ring and drifted in the Gulf of Mexico.

A Coast Guard search plane spotted them 13 hours later. So did the sharks.

"We didn't see the sharks until the very last," said Horne. "The shark hit my boy right as soon as the plane spotted us. Why the shark just hit him is something I will never be able to figure out as long as I live."

Horne, who had little sailing experience, had purchased the yacht last month. It was named Phoenix.

"I don't like the name of that," he told a neighbor. "It sounds too ill fated. I'm going to name it after my wife."

Co-Ed Can't Take A Contact Sport

REDWOOD CITY, (UPI) — Sherri Jerome, 19, can't take a College of San Mateo summer course in water polo because not enough women want to enter the program.

So she asked instructor Richard Donner for permission to take the class with the young men. Donner said she couldn't because water polo is a contact sport and women can't compete with the males.

So the determined young woman called her lawyer to see what legal recourse she had.

"We'll stick with our policy regarding contact sports," a school administrator said yesterday.

Officers Elected

The Reed School District Board elected new officers last night: Leo Souza, president; Dr. Robert K. Ockner, vice president, and Margaret Jones, clerk.

No Decision On Moving Wyeth, Art

CUSHING, Maine (UPI) — Movie producer Joseph E. Levine says no firm decision has been made on what to do with the Andrew Wyeth museum that has caused complaints from some townspeople and threats by the artist and his wife to pull up stakes and leave.

Levine, owner of the museum, met yesterday with artist Andrew Wyeth to talk over the matter. The museum is the old Christina Olson house, which has been depicted in many of Wyeth's paintings, most notably, "Christina's World."

Other New England communities have expressed interest in relocating the Wyeths and the old house to their areas.

Levine, a collector of Wyeth's works, bought the house in this quiet village in 1969 and it has been used as a museum for many of Wyeth's works since.

Lately, however, some of the Cushing townspeople have complained that the museum attracted scores of tourists who have littered the town and crowded the roads.

Wyeth and his wife, Betsy, who live in their own house here during the summer, say they've had enough of the controversy and are considering a permanent move to Europe.

Gov. Kenneth M. Curtis, through Conservation Commissioner Donaldson Koons, told the Wyeths the state might be interested in buying the house. The Holyoke, Mass., Chamber of Commerce also indicated an interest in having the house, and the Wyeths, come to Holyoke.

"We got the nicest letter from Searsport (Maine) which asked us to move there and take the Olson house with us," Mrs. Wyeth said

Totem poles are a tradition of some Indian tribes of the northwest coast of North America and represent family lineage.

Federal School Aid Said A Must

CHICAGO (UPI) — The National Education Association says the federal government would have to more than triple its support of U.S. public schools to bail them out of serious financial troubles.

In a report issued yesterday, the 1.5-million member association said besides a shortage of funds there were "widening educational inequities" among states and "even greater inequities among local school districts within a state."

The report, "Financial Status of the Public Schools, 1974," was issued at the NEA's 112th national convention.

According to the report, expenditures per pupil vary state-to-state from a high of $1,809 in New York state to a low of $716 in Alabama. The national average was $1,122.

Differences in teachers salaries ranged from a high of $16,053 in Alaska to a low of $7,854 in Mississippi.

"Certainly if we can find untold billions to finance the most unpopular and wasteful war (Vietnam) in the nation's history," said NEA Executive Secretary Terry E. Herndon, "there must be a way to provide the required additional federal funds to pay for our most profitable and popular investment —the education of our children."

Herndon called for a national outlay over the next few years of at least $20 billion more than what is currently spent. He said the NEA's "formula for equalizing educational opportunity" required the federal government to increase its support from less than 8 per cent to "at least one-third of the schooling cost."

The NEA said local property taxes represent about 50 per cent of total school revenue. The overreliance on the tax is "responsible for the wide disparities in education resources between property-poor and property-rich school systems within the same state," the NEA said.

Mariner 10 Set On Mercury Course

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — America's Mariner 10 spacecraft, which already has snapped close-up photos of the planets Venus and Mercury, responded to a course command yesterday to line up for a second sweep of Mercury in September.

Scientists at Jet Propulsion Laboratory sent a signal that turned on the tiny space probe's engines for 19 seconds to set up a rendevous with the closest planet to the sun on Sept. 21 at a distance of 30,000 miles.

Biker Hurt In Sausalito

A Southern California man was injured yesterday when his motorcycle overturned on Bridgeway in Northern Sausalito.

James Wells, 26, of Long Beach, was reported in good condition today at Marin General Hospital with a cut scalp and broken collarbone.

Sausalito police said Wells was driving north near Napa Street at 8:21 p.m. when a sports car stopped suddenly in front of him. He swerved to avoid the auto and fell from the motorcycle when it hit a curb.

Airline Record

LOS ANGELES (BW) — Western Airlines' June traffic, based on preliminary figures, totaled 614 million revenue passenger miles, a 6.1 per cent increase over June 1973 and a record for any June in the company's 48-year history, Arthur F. Kelly, president and chief executive officer, announced.

Soviet Attracts More Tourists

MOSCOW (UPI — Tourism to the Soviet Union jumped 26 per cent in 1973 over the previous year, according to Viktor Boichenko, head of Intourist, the state travel service.

About 2.9 million persons from 150 countries came here last year, 1.6 million of them from Communist countries, he said. The number of American tourists increased 38 per cent — 91,265 in 1973, compared with 66,164 in 1972.

The United States ranked third among non-Communist nations in the number of visitors. Finland was first with 496,452 and West Germany second with 109,059.

Humboldt Quake

EUREKA (UPI) — An earthquake rolled through a sparsely populated area of Humboldt County shortly before last midnight, registering 5 on the Richter Scale, the Berkeley Seismographic Station said today.

Radial Tires' Gas Saving Claim Upheld

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — There's a lot of truth in the report that radial tires provide better gas mileage, according to experts.

A Treasury Department staff study found that radials can improve gas mileage by 10 per cent. Fuel consumption rates were measured in cars with and without radials at 30, 50 and 70 miles per hour. Savings overall were 10 per cent greater on cars with radials.

Oil Auction Movements In Mideast

KUWAIT (UPI) — Kuwait and other Middle East oil producing countries are setting a pattern for oil auction sales aimed at minimizing the role of major oil companies in the marketing of oil, Kuwaiti Oil Minister Abdel Rahman Atiki said today.

In an interview with the newspaper As-Siyassa, Atiki said, "The Kuwaiti oil auction sales are designed mainly to minimize the role of international cartels in the marketing of oil and control of the oil industry."

Kuwait is planning to sell 1.25 million barrels of its crude oil share under the 60 per cent participation agreement for the third quarter of this year. Around 40 international oil companies have submitted offers in a closed envelop auction to buy the oil and the results of the auction are expected in the next few days.

"By selling the oil direct to the consumers in the open market, the producing governments are setting a trend in which the role of the oil companies will remain confined to prospecting, production and refining only," Atiki said.

Commenting on a Saudi-proposed conference between oil-producers and consumers, Atiki said, "Before holding such a conference, we must know the aim of the meeting in advance.

Synanon Wins Court Round In Suits On 'Game' Tapes

The Synanon Foundation won a Marin Court battle yesterday in what attorneys for the rehabilitation center view as a prelude to a larger showdown looming in San Francisco.

After a five-day trial, Superior Court Judge Henry J. Broderick announced he will rule in favor of Synanon in a complex cross-hatch of legal actions between the foundation and one-time Synanon member, Joseph E. Chico.

Chico, now a Daly City refrigeration salesman, left Synanon in December 1972.

He then filed a $100,000 damage suit, claiming that he was beaten by Synanon officials when he tried to leave, and that his tools and stereo were stolen.

Synanon countered by suing Chico, claiming he stole seven tapes of encounter sessions, called "games," of which five were recovered.

Synanon attorneys Dan L. Garrett and Adrian S. Williams argued during the trial that the two tapes Chico admitted getting away with were turned over to Garret McErnerney II, an attorney for the San Francisco Examiner, and eventually found their way to a reporter for the Wall Street Journal.

Synanon has sued the Examiner for $32 million in San Francisco, claiming the newspaper libeled the foundation with a series of articles.

On the witness stand yesterday, Chico testified he was paid $400 by McErnerney's office to turn over the two tapes.

Chico also is a defendant in the San Francisco libel action, and Synanon claims two other former Synanon members stole tape recordings and gave them to the Examiner in much the same fashion as Chico.

Broderick has yet to issue a formal decision in the Chico case but ruled from the bench yesterday that Synanon is not liable for aggravating an old back injury suffered by Chico or for taking his tools and stereo.

Instead, he ordered Chico to pay $17.25 to Synanon for taking the two tapes he got away with.

Mountain Of Blades; How Many Whiskers?

MORRIS PLAINS, N.J. (AP) — If all the razor blades sold in the United States last year could be stacked in a pile, they would just about equal the height of Mount McKinley, at 20,320 feet North America's highest peak.

According to researchers, approximately 1.9 billion blades were sold in the U.S. last year.

Council Set To Enlarge Its Chamber

Plans to expand the Novato City Council chambers to a capacity of about 100 persons were approved last night by the Novato City Council.

Councilmen endorsed plans by Wagstaff and McDonald, San Anselmo architects, for remodeling the chambers which now can hold only about 35 persons.

The council had budgeted $60,000 for the work, but the estimated cost is now $76,800.

Councilman Fred F. Ruegg, wary of spending much money on the old Community House bulding which houses the chambers, opposed the project.

Bids will be sought in September and construction will start in October.

The Novato City Council also:

TRANSIENT TAX — Introduced an ordinance to increase the transient occupancy tax on hotel and motel rooms from 5 to 6 per cent.

POSTMASTER'S HOUSE — Accepted an offer from the Novato Civic Foundation to undertake restoration of the old postmaster's house on De Long avenue near city hall, as part of Novato's contribution to the 1976 bicentennial celebration.

HOUSING — Adopted an ordinance to permit housing for the elderly in various zoning districts by use permit.

CLAIM — Denied a $126,530 claim by Richard P., Robert M. and William F. Nave Jr. for loss of property and cost of improvements required in connection with renovation of the Nave Shopping Center.

COMMENDATION — Commended Steven F. Rawlinson who saved the life of a man on Feb. 9, 1973, by pulling him from the path of a train.

NEXT MEETING — Adjourned to 8 p.m. Tuesday.

Thai Students Plan U.S. Protest March

BANGKOK (UPI) — Student leaders said today they plan a rally and march on the U.S. Embassy tomorrow — American Independence Day —to protest the presence of U.S. forces in Thailand.

The United States has announced its plans to cut back its forces in Thailand by about a third this year, bringing the troop level down to about 28,000. In the last three months, half the approximately 50 B52 bombers based in the country have been withdrawn to the United States.

Protesting Viet Vets Seek Total Amnesty

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Chanting, clapping Vietnam veterans and their supporters took their demand for unconditional amnesty to the Justice Department today and then made an unscheduled stop at the U.S. District Court to shout "jail him" outside the John D. Ehrlichman trial.

The protesters, 250-300 strong, assembled at their encampment on the mall for the late morning march after being evicted from the campsite by U.S. Park Police during the night.

At the Justice Department, Brian Adams, a national coordinator of Vietnam Veterans Against the War-Winter Soldier Organization, told the demonstrators that the former all-veterans group was joining with "all winter soldiers to fight for a new kind of society."

Universal and unconditional amnesty for all war resisters and former soldiers who received a less than honorable discharge, he said, was an integral part of that new society.

The demonstration, which lasted less than 20 minutes, was without incident.

After leaving the Justice Department, the demonstrators marched to the U.S. Court House where the trial of Ehrlichman, a former President top aide, and three others, was in progress.

After about 10 minutes of chanting, the demonstrators returned to their encampment on the mall.

The demonstrations, planned to climax tomorrow with two mass marches by two separate organizations, have about them the ring of the antiwar demonstrations during the height of American involvement in Vietnam.

But now, as the chanted slogans of the marching protesters suggest, the issues are slightly different.

Instead of "out now" and "bring the troops home," the members and supporters of Vietnam Veterans Against the War-Winter Soldier Operation are shouting: "Free our brothers, free our sisters — Amnesty for war resisters."

Some 350 demonstrators brought another of their complaints —inadequate veterans' benefits —to the VA with the cry: "They say cutbacks, we say fight back."

According to VVAW-WSO, there are inadequate benefits for Veterans plus a bureaucratic system that makes it impossible for the VA to meet the needs of "the veteran in the street."

Sam Schorr, a VVAW-WSO national coordinator, told the crowd that all attempts to talk with VA officials had failed.

"We will not go inside this building any more," Schorr shouted into a bull horn. "If they want to talk to veterans they'll have to come out on the streets where the veterans are."

The demonstrators then moved to Lafayette park for a rally to promote their belief that "Nixon should be kicked out" of office because he represents "a major obstacle" to all of their demands.

Bridge Named After DeSoto

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — A $57 million, six-lane bridge over the Mississippi River opened here in 1973 was named for explorer Hernando DeSoto.

The Spanish Conquistador first saw the wide rush of the Mississippi in the vicinity of what is now Memphis in the spring of 1541. He fell ill and died a short time later.

DeSoto first was buried, but his men feared discovery of the body by Indians. So they weighed it down with armor and sank it in the Mississippi.

Note Sent Threatening 'Cremation'

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UPI) — Gov. Otis Bowen, his family, and his cabinet have been threatened with "cremation," a spokesman said today, and similar threats are believed to have been mailed other governors.

William Watt, news aide for Bowen, revealed a handwritten anonymous card postmarked South Bend, Ind., arrived at the Indiana statehouse office of the governor two days ago.

Indiana State police have launched a search in northern Indiana for a man considered a suspect, Watt said.

State police said the postcard, postmarked June 28 and addressed to "The Governor, Indianapolis, Ind.," read:

A police spokesman said, "We definitely are taking it seriously."

Indiana authorities have been in touch with Cleveland authorities, he said.

"The state police believe about 12 to 15 governors probably received similar postcards and possibly some other federal officials as well," Watt said. "The card is kind of difficult to read."

At South Bend earlier today, it was reported a former mental patient was sought for sending similar cards to all 50 governors. The suspect, sought in Cleveland and Indiana, was identified as a 48-year-old former mental patient from the Cleveland area.

Green sunfish are found in most bodies of water, according to fish biologists, but bluegills are most numerous in lakes, ponds and the backwater of large rivers.

SERVING ALL OF MARIN COUNTY

TODAY'S EDITORIAL

Delegating Power Not The Solution

The 1973-74 Marin County Grand Jury did a more thorough job than most in its role of investigator of county government. Its searching study could be of great benefit to Marin and its taxpayers.

However, we find some seeming contradictions between the jury's findings and its recommendations.

THE JURY FOUND that the board of supervisors — the elected governing body — acts often with insufficient information. For the information it needs the board relies largely on the county administrator.

Yet to correct this, the jury proposed that the county administrator be given wider powers.

This recommendation apparently was influenced by the county governmental structure study done for the grand jury by Peat Marwick and Mitchell, a consulting firm. The PM&M study pinpointed many inadequacies in the present governing process. But then it recommended that the supervisors delegate responsibilities to a series of committees, headed by the already-in-existence management committee made up principally of department heads.

It then further recommended that the board appoint a "citizens charter study commission" to review the management committee's efforts and determine whether the county's present governmental structure is appropriate. It also —predictably — proposed hiring more consultants to make more studies.

THIS APPROACH removes responsibility from those upon whom the voters have placed it. It is inimical to democratic government.

The essence of our form of government is that the people know best what's good for them. Through popular election, they choose governors and legislators who, they believe, feel as they do. Whenever these elected officials delegate the power of decision — whether to hired "experts" or appointed committees — the elective process is nullified.

Not only that, but the delegation usually fails to produce the desired results. The appointed committee is less responsive to the public than the elected officials; the hired "expert" is subject to the limitation so well described by Harold J. Laski: "There is, in fact, no expert group which does not tend to deny that truth may possibly be found outside the boundary of its private Pyrenees."

THE SOLUTION to the problem of too loose county governmental structure is to tighten it. Rather than create more committees, the board should gather the reins more tightly into its own hands.

If the administrator does not give the board sufficient information, he should be required to do so. But the supervisors must make the decisions. That's what we elected them to do.

DECLINE AND FALL OF THE U.S.A.?

America Can Point To Accomplishments

By ROSCOE DRUMMOND
(Third in a series of five articles.)

WASHINGTON — I do not intend to minimize the somber plight in which the United States finds itself today — its government weakened and indolent, cynicism rampant, trust in grievously short supply, uncontrolled inflation imperiling the very foundation of our society.

I DO NOT DISPUTE this view. In an earlier column I set out the signs of the decline of this nation which parallel many of the signs of the decline of the Roman Empire — the symptoms which cause Mr. Mumford to say we are already in the dark age.

But are we going to stay there? What can we do about it? Is all the evidence on one side — the side of hopeless despair?

It isn't. And if we are going to summon the will, the energy, the resources and the vision to turn things around and avert the worst, then we need to appreciate something of the worthy and worthwhile things America and Americans have done as a nation and as a people since the end of World War II.

THIS IS THE "other side" of what has been happening:

—At a time when it possessed total monopoly of nuclear power, the United States offered to destroy its atomic bombs and put the production of all nuclear weapons under international control and safeguards. The Soviet Union refused.

—The American people contributed $14 billion to the economic recovery of this nation's allies and former enemies after the war.

—At the initiative of three presidents — Truman, Kennedy, Johnson — the United States acted to arrest aggression at its inception in Korea and Vietnam, perhaps unwisely but with honorable motives.

—Racial justice is ascendant. Laws enforcing segregation of blacks and whites in public education were struck down by the Supreme Court. After some years of resistance and resentment, the dual schools are virtually ended and the racial caste system in the South is nearly dissolved.

—The Supreme Court abolished distorted voting districts which had produced so many unrepresentative state legislatures in its one-voter, one-vote ruling.

—In the wake of these decisions Congress enacted new civil rights legislation protecting minorities.

—THE UNITED STATES has ended its war in Southeast Asia, is averting war in the Middle East, and is significantly reducing the peril of confrontation among three superpowers: the Soviet Union, China and itself.

—The nation's enterprise economy is ameliorating black poverty. The majority of black families moved into the middle class in a single decade.

—The number of black mayors rose from 82 last year to 108 so far this year. The number of blacks elected to political office last year was 152 per cent more than five years ago. Thus, black leaders are steadily turning away from protest against to participation in the American democratic process.

—The United States is wisely reducing its military commitments in distant parts of the world and is seeking shared responsibility in serving the cause of peace.

I cite the foregoing not to distract from what has gone badly but to show that the seeds of recovery and restoration are present and that the dark decade can be overcome.

(NEXT: Drummond discusses urgently needed political and social reforms.)

Immigration Policy Attacked By Population Control Group

By DAVID E. ANDERSON

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The population prophets of doom, having witnessed a rapid movement toward stabilization of the U.S. birth rate, are turning their attention to a new area — immigration policy.

Robert T. Dennis, executive director of an organizaation known as Zero Population Growth, said a new report showed immigration "poses a serious threat to the achievement of population stabilization."

"In the next 30 years," Dennis said, "immigrants and their descendants will add 20 million people, the equivalent of the present population of California, to our numbers."

According to ZPG, the U.S. population is growing by 1.5 million annually, of which nearly one-quarter — 400,000 — are legal immigrants.

EARLIER THIS YEAR, the National Center for Health Statistics reported that birth and fertility rates in the United States dropped to 1.9 children per family —substantially below the population "replacement level" of 2.1 children a family.

At that rate, according to projections by population experts, the United States would reach the stage of zero population growth sometime in the 21st Century.

The ZPG report, however, indicates that the immigration situation could continue to inhibit a stabilized American population policy.

THE ZPG APPROACH to population stabilization is certain to run into problems as it contests with deeply held American beliefs.

Among those beliefs is that America is a country that has been built on immigration and that it has been the foreign born who have provided the vision, the brains and the muscle to make the United States the country it is today.

In addition, most Americans believe — at least intellectually, as the case of Russian writer Alexander Solzhenitsyn suggests — that free movement of people is a fundamental human right and any restraints on such movement are to be resisted.

ZPG, however, points out that immigration to the United States has been restricted for 90 years and that these laws are not immutable.

ZPG SAID THAT in its view, freedom of individual movement "is not absolute" and "the age of mass international migrations and of emigration as a population control technique is at an end."

It expressed concern that the impact of the brain drain — recruitment of highly skilled immigrants from less developed countries — has a deleterious effect on the Third World.

Noting that there are now more Filipino doctors in the United States than there are black doctors, ZPG suggested a public policy to insure that these highly skilled people return home "to confront the problems of their native lands."

The ZPG study is only the first round in what will be a long attack on immigration policies. The inscription on the Statue of Liberty —"give me your tired, your poor, your huddled masses, yearning to breathe free" — promises to be a tough adversary.

"President Nixon said if we need anything, to just rub."

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

'In God We Trust' — Except In Classroom

This letter is written to stand in defense of the "Thanksgiving" song used at Waldo Rohnert School in Rohnert Park.

We are all entitled to differing opinions, we do not have the right to force those opinions on others. Through judicial process Mrs. Langford has done just that.

Prayer has been outlawed in schools. This is not a prayer, it is a song. One of 800 other songs in state textbooks that refer to God and blessings. Why all the fuss over this one?

I defend the Cotati-Rohnert Park School District in its stand to continue use of this song, and I stand with the district and all concerned parents and individuals to be counted as being in favor of its continued use.

All United States currency bears our national motto, "In God we trust," and I do.

Glass Blower's Art Survives In Marin

We would like to take this opportunity to compliment you on the articles in Marin Living which feature people of varying interests and talents. These presentations have been consistently interesting and delightful to read. As we have enjoyed them so much, we would like to make a suggestion of a possible subject for a future article. William Rasmussen, a resident of Novato, is a glass sculptor of exceptional skill and we think your readers would be interested in reading about his work. A native Californian, Mr. Rasmussen comes from a family of glass blowers and was the original glass blower at Disneyland.

It is seldom that one sees flame glass work as imaginative and exquisite as that produced by Mr. Rasmussen. His Ghirardelli Square studio attracts visitors from all over the world, and Marin County residents would be proud to know that this master glass sculptor is their neighbor.

Two Sets Of Laws: For Rich And Poor?

When are we going to read of the final disposition of the tax exemption granted to the Larkspur retirement apartments?

Every retired person that can not afford to live there is interested, having read in the Independent Journal that this exemption was granted with the aid of one of the welfare laws, I would like to point out that the Welfare Department will be deprived of a substantial sum in taxes, as well as other state and local government departments.

There is a great outcry every time a welfare recipient cheats a little bit, and he is often sent off to jail.

Perhaps we have heard right, when we have heard of two sets of laws: one for the wealthy, and one for the poor? Complaints of welfare abuses? When we hear of them, we think of "the have nots" as the offenders. It seems the wealthy are not satisfied with tax loopholes, they now do not want to pay at all!...

We pensioners are reminded that our taxes are not based on our ability to pay. We must pay even though the money comes out of our cost-of-living pensions. Most of us ask nothing more than a chance to remain in our small homes, and to stay off of welfare rolls.

Should it happen that the "welfare arms" in Larkspur be exempt from paying taxes, just that much more must come from the pensioner's pocket.

No wonder there is a rash of "FOR SALE" signs all over the county.

ERNEST B. FURGURSON

Jefferson's Stature Untouched By Revival Of Old Scandal

MONTICELLO, Va. — Even in the summer morning rain, with low clouds blocking the view off toward the Blue Ridge and the university, Americans come here by the many hundreds every day. In summer they have to park a half-mile away from the house and wait for Mercedes minibuses to take them up and back, as if they were at JFK Airport instead of at the home of the farmer-inventor-archaeologist-musician-anthropologist-lawyer-dreamer who summed it up for all of us on July 4, 1776.

What they think of Thomas Jefferson today is not clear to me. They come mainly because this is still a beautiful spot, on the checklist of famous places one must visit, with the White House, Mt. Vernon and Williamsburg. More than any of those, it evokes the individuality of one man. Most of them know he was our third president and drafter of the Declaration of Independence, and when they come here they are intrigued by the variety of his genius.

But of Jefferson the breathing man, they get here only an edited version. The nice ladies who conduct the tours never volunteer the word "slaves," never point to the slaves' quarters, and surely they never utter a public thought about Sally Hemings.

ALTHOUGH TODAY'S best-selling biography of Jefferson is full of Sally Hemings, it is not on sale at the souvenir-book shop at Monticello. The shop carries many Jefferson books, including an earlier would-be definitive 1,070-page biography by Nathan Schachner which does not mention her at all.

I asked whether the current book were offered, thinking perhaps it was kept under the counter the way X-rated books used to be. But the manager of the shop said, "No. It's not a book of history, so the directors said no."

Well, that is understandable. For the new book, Fawn Brodie's "Jefferson, An Intimate History," makes a plausible though circumstantial case for the human side of Jefferson that has been skipped or discreetly discounted by biographers past. She maintains in some detail that the slave Sally Hemings became Jefferson's mistress in his widowerhood, and he the father of her children.

Not only the caretakers of Monticello, but many other historians challenge this version. They do so partly out of self-defense, but they base their case on scholarship. The directors here and the tour guides do so out of almost religious reverence for Mr. Jefferson.

DOWN BELOW, around Mr. Jefferson's university in Charlottesville, people shrug about the revived scandal. "Why, they used to say everybody in Vinegar Hill was named either Jefferson or Washington, but it's all torn down now." Vinegar Hill was Charlottesville's oldest black neighborhood.

Up here on the mountain, they are not so tolerant of the Brodie version. For more than 50 years, the Thomas Jefferson Memorial Foundation has been preserving and polishing the Jefferson legend along with its tangible remnants. It runs a respectful enterprise, where a sign at the entrance to the entire 1,800 acres says, "Shoes must be worn on premises at all times," and is seldom challenged.

The historian Brodie has trespassed barefooted or worse, and these days that is much more sacrilegious than coming to a meeting of the Daughters of the American Legion Flying the Union Jack. Not only is there the possibility that the traditional idolators of Mr. Jefferson are right and the brash biographer is wrong about the Hemings matter; either way, they see no reason why they should entertain it here at his shrine.

IN THE LONG RUN, though, three steps are necessary to reach the conclusion that his place in history is lessened by the scandal:

We must believe (1) that it is true; (2) that if so, it is indeed a scandal, because immoral, and (3) that if both of those, it matters enough to overshadow the rest of what he did.

Not even the nice ladies who guide the tours can believe (3), if they think about it. After all, it is not as if he obstructed justice, or conspired against our civil rights, against our privacy or our freedom. Quite the contrary. And that is the part that men will remember when most later presidents are forgotten.

THE PEOPLE'S SCHOOLS

Legislature Moves To Require Teaching System Of Justice

By BRYCE W. ANDERSON

California junior high and high schools hereafter must offer instruction in the practical operation of our system of criminal justice, including the juvenile courts, and the basic principles upon which it is founded.

This is mandated by Senate Bill 1426, introduced by state Sen. Alan Robbins, D-North Hollywood, which was signed into law last week by Gov. Ronald Reagan.

The bill adds instruction in our criminal justice system to the requirements for social studies in seventh through 12th grades. These requirements already call for anthropology, economics, geography, history, political science, psychology, sociology, and American government.

As the list indicates, some of the requirements are largely overlooked in many schools. A list of high schools offering economics instruction of any consequence probably would be a very short one. Anthropology is likely to be limited to "social anthropology" of particular races or minority groups. And the California high school that offers much in geography instruction is a rarity.

IF INSTRUCTION in the criminal justice system is to receive any real emphasis, it will require yeoman effort by school boards and superintendents.

The California Teachers Association opposed Senator Robbins' bill, on the basis of long-standing opposition to state-mandated curriculum.

CTA, however, was on rather weak ground. The record since adoption of the George Miller Jr. Act in 1968, which freed the course of study from most of its state mandates, has not added to public confidence in allowing the schools to make up their own curricula.

The first notable result of passage of the Miller Act was introduction of "Family Life" courses at virtually all levels from first grade up. These courses, largely developed by the Sex Information and Education Council of the U.S., were ready and waiting in the wings when the Miller Act opened the curtain for expansion of curriculum by eliminating many of the previous mandates. They were soon introduced in almost every California school district. Ever since, they have been the cause of much bitter controversy, further alienating the public from the schools.

ANOTHER RESULT that soon appeared was watering down of basic subjects. For example, since the mandates for teaching grammar at specified grade levels were dropped, grammar soon took a back seat to "English" classes that deal only peripherally with the language. The high school graduate who can parse or diagram a sentence has become rare.

This watering down was accompanied by introduction of "trash" courses, which offer little or nothing in the way of academic value but are considered "relevant" because they offer opportunities for teacher-class "rap sessions."

"Freeing the curriculum" has indeed widened the range of high school offerings, until they include everything from "Black Studies" to "Understanding Yourself." However, with a single exception, the added courses offer nothing of what used to be called "civics" — once a required subject for high school graduation. The single exception is the "New Voter" course developed by a committee of educators working with Peter C. Meyer, Marin County elections officer. It is a nuts-and-bolts course in local government and use of the franchise which has been introduced in quite a few high schools.

It will be unfortunate if the legislature starts mandating so many courses that the high schools can no longer offer the variety necessary to meet assorted student needs. If it happens, however, California's school teachers and administrators can with considerable fairness be told, "You asked for it!"

FAMILY GATHERING — Mrs. Deborah Dortzbach, a missionary nurse, and her husband, Karl, join relatives and friends as they sing "Praise God From Whom All Blessings Flow." Mrs. Dortzbach, who was a captive of Ethiopian guerrillas for 26 days, arrived yesterday at Kennedy International Airport in New York following her release. (UPI Telephoto)

ETHIOPIAN ORDEAL

Missionary Nurse, Family Reunited

NEW YORK (UPI) — Smiling vivaciously and tightly clutching her huband's hand, an American missionary nurse came home yesterday and praised the Lord for seeing her through a 26-day ordeal as a captive of Ethiopian guerrillas.

Mrs. Deborah Dortzbach and her husband, Karl, walked hand-in-hand through the long corridors of Kennedy Airport greeting well-wishers after arriving here from Rome.

The 24-year-old brunette, who is six-months pregnant, said she prayed constantly until her release 10 days ago in the Red Sea port of Masawa, Ethiopia.

Mrs. Dortzbach and another nurse, Dutch-born Anna Stickwerda, were seized on May 27 from the American Evangelical Mission Hospital at Ghinda in the northern Ethiopian province of Eritrea, which is partially controlled by guerrillas.

She dramatically described the death of Miss Stickwerda, who was shot by the rebels during a forced march.

"It was a grueling walk through the bush, and Anna lost her shoes," she said. "It was difficult to walk on the rocky ground and our captors made us separate.

"They forced me to walk ahead of Anna as she was stooping down to put on her shoes. I heard a shot and when I turned around I saw her fall back," she said.

"I felt a pang of fear," she added, "but God met with me and I was no longer frightened."

Both women were kidnaped because the guerrillas were unable to find a doctor assigned to the hospital, she said.

"They told me that they were freedom fighters and wanted the world to know that," she said.

Mrs. Dortzbach said that, except for the strenuous two-day walk immediately after her capture, she was treated well and was given ample food.

"I think that they strongly considered that I was a woman and that I was pregnant," she said.

"I feel absolutely fantastic, and I am praising the Lord," Mrs. Dortzbach said. "It is only by His grace that I am able to stand here."

But if it is "God's will" she will return to Ethiopia and continue her work.

Strawberry Residents' Garbage Rates Going Up

Garbage collection rates in Strawberry are going up 15 per cent retroactive to July 1 and will go up another 5 per cent on Jan. 1, 1975.

The Strawberry Recreation District board approved the increases to be charged by the Mill Valley Refuse Co. at a meeting Monday, according to District Mgr. Gayle L. Hunter.

For the occupant of a single-family home, the rate goes from $2.60 to $3 per month for collection of one can and from $4.35 to $5 per month for two cans.

As of Jan. 1, the rates will be $3.15 for a single can and $5.25 for two cans.

Also Monday the board's open space committee reported that it will make a shopping list of possible properties to be bought with a $500,000 open space bond issue approved last month. The list will be ready Sept. 23, according to committee chairman Elizabeth Doss.

The board also voted to spend $2,500 for constructing a grass field next to the tennis courts and $1,900 for a chain link fence around the district tot lot.

Trustees Reorganize In Fairfax

The Fairfax School District board last night elected Trustee Thomas A. Truchan president for 1974-75.

Truchan, a San Rafael High School teacher, lives at 175 Frustuck Avenue. He was elected to the board in 1971.

The board picked Jane S. Durr, former president, for board clerk, according to Supt. H. Reginald Hammond. Trustee George C. Stone will continue as trustee representative.

The board appointed Kenneth Lucas, principal of Manor School, as acting administrator when Hammond is out of town. There is no pay for the acting post.

The board set an Aug. 6 hearing on interdistrict attendance policy, Hammond said.

The board next will meet at 7:45 p.m. July 16.

Jobs For Youth Grant Received

Marin County has been allocated $172,391 by the federal Department of Labor to provide jobs, transportation and recreation for economically disadvantaged youth, the department's San Francisco office has announced.

Some $165,009 will be used to provide jobs for high-school age youngsters under the Summer Program for Economically Disadvantaged Youth (SPEDY), and $7,382 is for the transportation and recreation programs.

Sonoma County has received $328,137 in grants — $314,086 in SPEDY funds and $14,051 in recreation and transportation money.

Wolfback Ridge Developer Again Rejected By Council

Developer Edward Fitzsimmons suffered yet another setback last night in his bid to build 311 homes on Sausalito's Wolfback Ridge.

In a 3-1 decision, Sally Stanford dissenting, Sausalito City Councilmen rejected a tentative subdivision map for 156 acres on the scenic ridge west of Highway 101.

The council ruled that the map must be denied because Fitzsimmons cannot prove that public access to the property is available via Wolfback Ridge Road.

Two Marin Superior Court judges have ruled that Wolfback Ridge Road is a private street. The owners have denied the developer use of the road for his project.

The council overruled a planning commission decision that the map be approved on condition that Fitzsimmons show within one year the availability of Wolfback Ridge Road for use by future residents of the project.

Differing with the planners, councilmen viewed the access question as a requirement prior to approval, rather than as a condition of approval.

The map represents the sixth plan for development of the property in the past 4.5 years.

Fitzsimmons was visibly upset as discussion dragged on until 1 a.m. and it appeared the council would not vote in his favor. "You know you are members of a conspiracy," he told councilmen at one point. "I know it and I can prove it now."

The developer currently is suing the city for inverse condemnation of the property, charging that city officials conspired to deny his development applications for reasons other than were stated during public hearings. A decision on the suit is pending.

Fitzsimmons also is appealing in district court the most recent decision that Wolfback Ridge Road is a private thoroughfare.

During the discussion, Fitzsimmons also charged collusion between Planning Director Herb Case and Lari Sheehan of the Local Agency Formation Commission.

He said they attempted to have his entire property deannexed from the city because density requirements are more stringent in the county general plan than the city general plan. Case denied the accusation.

The Sausalito City Council also:

CYPRESS RIDGE — Granted a lot split application to Wayne Wedell for property at 826 Spring Street on Cypress Ridge.

ZONING — Authorized restaurants in commercial-residential zones to serve beer and wine. Violeta Autumn opposed.

FORTUNE TELLING — Postponed until next Tuesday consideration of an attorney's request the city lift its ban on fortune telling.

ARCHEOLOGICAL SITE — Postponed until next Tuesday a decision on granting a San Rafael archeologist permission to excavate an Indian burial ground in the Caledonia Street area.

ANCHORAGE — Agreed to discuss a Coast Guard proposal for a designated boat anchorage in Richardson Bay at 8 p.m. today in the firehouse on Johnson Street.

OPEN SPACE — Adjourned until 8 p.m. today in the Johnson Street firehouse for discussion of the proposed Richardson Bay anchorage and to consider wording for the city's open space measure on the November ballot.

Eight Grass Fires Flare In Marin

Eight grass fires were reported in Marin County yesterday, the largest burning four acres in Novato.

Six units from the Novato Fire Department responded to a call at 6:15 p.m. on the hillside above Bugeia Lane and Topaz Drive. The firemen had the blaze under control within 20 minutes, according to Asst. Fire Chief Raymond E. Dougherty.

Dougherty reported that there were no injuries and at no time was any building threatened. He said it took three hours before his crew completed mopup operations at the scene because of the extensive area — four acres — that was burned.

The other grass fires were at: 10:27 a.m., San Rafael — 2,500-square-foot area burned on hillside above 181 Ridgewood Avenue; 11:17 a.m., Homestead Valley — 250 square-foot area burned at 280 Edgewood Avenue; 11:41 a.m., Fairfax — One acre of grass burned at Bothin Girl Scout Camp on White's Hill; 11:42 a.m., Novato — 7,500 square-foot area burned on hillside above Tiki Road; 12:14 p.m., Novato — 1,200 square-foot area burned at intersection of Highway 101 and San Marin Drive; 1:29 p.m., Larkspur — 1,000 square-foot area burned in empty lot across from 410 William Avenue.

Soviet Censors Cut Telecasts

MOSCOW (UPI) — Three American television networks say their connections suddenly went dead yesterday when they tried to broadcast television news stories about Soviet dissidents to the United States.

ABC, CBS and NBC said their correspondents were cut off yesterday evening as they attempted to send television news accounts by satellite on a hunger strike by Soviet nuclear physicist Andrei D. Sakharov and on the activities of other dissident scientists.

After their initial film presentations were cut off, the correspondents tried to broadcast that fact to their U.S. audiences and were again cut off.

Moretti Leads In Campus Vote

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — a survey shows student voters in the June 4 gubernatorial primary clearly favored Democratic Assemblyman Bob Moretti and Controller Houston I. Flournoy.

Moretti, who was defeated for the nomination, won pluralities at nine of 13 campuses studied, according to the University of California Student Lobby report released Monday.

Flournoy was favored over Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke at all but one campus—Loyola, where the two politicians split the support evenly with 48.6 per cent each. Flournoy overwhelmingly won the GOP nomination.

MR. AND MRS. John W. Strahlendorf of San Rafael address invitations to the 50th anniversary celebration to be given for them July 14 by their sons and their families. The couple was married July 3, 1924, in San Francisco.

A Golden Anniversary Party Set

The year 1905 was probably not the best to pick to come to San Francisco, but that was the year 16-year-old John W. Strahlendorf came from his native Hamburg, Germany.

He came to work in his uncle's grocery store on the corner of Geary Boulevard and Parker Avenue, which he did until the earthquake and fire the following April.

Since there was no work after that, he decided to go to sea, and for 10 years he went from ship to ship, stern wheelers and side wheeler, working his way from mess boy to fireman. His sea travels ended in Australia, where he worked in the shipyards for four years.

"In 1914 the war had started in Europe. I wasn't a citizen, so I wanted to get back to Canada," Strahlendorf said.

He worked his way to Canada, then walked across the border into the United States and went to Seattle. In Seattle he got a job on a fishing boat on its way to Alaska. The boat was going first to San Francisco, but when it arrived in port the fishermen were on strike, so Strahlendorf decided to call his uncle. He remained in San Francisco, and after a year in the wholesale grocery business went back to work for his uncle.

Also working for his uncle was Johanna Richter, a native of San Francisco. The two were married July 3, 1924, in her parents' home. Mrs. Strahlendorf retired to rear a family, and Strahlendorf continued to work in the store until he retired in 1970.

The Strahlendorfs moved to Marin last year to be near their sons, John Charles Strahlendorf of San Anselmo and Robert Strahlendorf of Novato.

The couple will celebrate their 50th anniversary July 14 at a buffet hosted by their sons and their families at Robert's home.

The couple enjoys traveling and likes to take a "good trip" every year. When Strahlendorf was in his late 70s they drove from San Francisco to St. John's, Newfoundland, touring for two and a half months in a 1954 Chevrolet, which was finally retired recently with 130,000 miles on it.

In 1971 Strahlendorf went back to Germany to visit relatives, and the couple has made many trips East and to Iowa.

A Mailliard Clan Member Feted At Surprise Party

By MOLLY MARIN

An "all-American" surprise party greeted Jack Mailliard of San Francisco last night when he arrived to visit his cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Page at their Belvedere home.

Mailliard, brother of William S. Mailliard, former congressman now ambassador to the Organization of American States, is president of a Sausalito food brokerage firm.

Two hundred fifty childhood friends, college classmates and friends, who flew in for the party arrived at 6:30 p.m. and were greeted by "living statues." Uncle Sam greeted guests at the gate, and the Statue of Liberty posed in the fish pond.

THERE SEEMS to be some interest in reviving the Marin Debutante Ball.

Members of the Marin Charitable Foundation, sponsors of the ball from 1962 to 1970, have discussed the possibility, according to Mrs. Wallace Scott of Belvedere, and some girls are interested.

Ida Scott said she would not be surprised to see the ball revived this year.

PARADISE HARBOR Yacht Club members and friends will play games, race sailboats and picnic on Fourth of July beginning at 9 a.m. with a skippers' meeting at the Tiburon Club.

The traditional Brothers and Sisters Islands will be held from 10 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

A "Dunkin' Derby" in El Toros will take place at 2 p.m. in the harbor and ashore games will follow.

The chicken barbecue will bw served at 5 p.m. followed by music and live entertainment at 6:30 p.m.

Social chairmen Messrs. and Mmes. Mike Fitz-Gerald and Ken Piper are assisted by Mmes. John Ireland and Richard Morse, set-up; Messrs. and Mmes. Ronn Hill, Michael Russell and Ralph Hendricks, serving; Connie Russell and Steve Hill, games; Lee Hausam, music; Mark Stock, "Dunkin' Derby"; and Messrs. and Mmes. Samuel Mendelson, Jack Loughmiller and James Workman, clean-up.

TWO MARIN couples, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Ruane of Novato and Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Markt of Fairfax, were among the 27 classmates who attended the reunion of the 1934 class of Corning Union High School June 22 and 23.

The group enjoyed dinner at a Corning restaurant owned by one of their former classmates and a barbecue the following day. Mrs. Ruane then accompanied her cousins, Mr. and Mrs. John P. Glicks to Palos Verdes to see their new home, while the other three returned to Marin. Mrs. Ruane flew home from Los Angeles a few days later.

FRIENDS ARE learning that Mrs. Sarah Cist Toughill of Mill Valley and James Monroe Brandenburg of Santa Paula were married in the city hall at Reno, Nev. on May 19.

Mrs. Toughill is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Cist of Mill Valley, formerly of Mountain Lakes, N.J. She was educated at Dana Hall, Wellesley, Mass., and was graduated from Mt. Holyoke College at South Hadley, Mass. She also attended the University of Zurich in Switzerland and received the teaching credential from Sonoma State College. She is a teacher at the Mill Valley Middle School and a self-employed photographer.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Cecil Brandenburg of Santa Paula. A self-employed commercial fisherman, he is the owner of the fishing vessel, the Jinita.

The couple plan to divide their time between fishing expeditions in the Pacific aboard the Jinita and a home in Mill Valley.

Children's games, swimming and baseball are planned for members and friends from 2 to 5 p.m.

Families will barbecue their own dinners beginning at 5 p.m. and enjoy bingo and band music afterward, according to manager Sheret Cross.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Despite A 9-Year Age Gap, She May Be In Love With Him

DEAR HELEN:

I'm 27. He's 18. He's witty, charming, not aggressive, and I'm terribly infatuated with him. We talk and kid and I love to listen to him play his guitar and sing. I really want a relationship with this young man, yet I've enough sense to tell myself he's still just a boy.

I'm just emerging from an unhappy marriage to possibly one of the nicest guys in the world. But we couldn't be together without fighting. Counseling didn't help. So — a divorce, though we still care very much about each other.

And now — Greg who lives next door and doesn't know I have this crush. He is between girl friends, and comes over to talk to me a lot.

1. Would I scare him off if I told him how I feel?

2. Is a nine-year gap too much to bridge?

3. Would his family hate me for "seducing" their son? — P.E.H.

DEAR P.:

1. Probably not. But Greg might start a relationship with an older woman merely for the "experience" — something perhaps to brag about —especially if she initiates it.

2. No. Age doesn't matter if you're well matched. But are you?

3. Yes!

Are you sure this "infatuation" isn't mostly loneliness for a husband you still love? — H.

DEAR HELEN:

You asked where the word "gay" (for homosexuals) came from. In the 15th Century, court jesters were called "gays." In more modern times (when most of us were in the closet), "It's a gay day today" was a signal, the code words by which we could recognize one another. — NO LONGER HIDING

DEAR HELEN:

Could you please reprint a description of "Grandma" that you had in your column sometime back in 1968 or 69? It didn't apply to me then, but it does now. Thank you. — HOPEFUL

DEAR HOPEFUL:

Gladly. Is this the one?

LOOK AT GRANDMA

Children love them; mothers often resent them. Fathers tolerate them, and God blesses them. Grandmas are love with gray hair, understanding with wrinkled eyes, beauty with an extra chin, and wisdom with added years.

When you are busy, grandmas are added hands; when you are lonely, they brighten the void; when you are tired, grandmas take over; and when you are happy, they are marvelous people to be near and share joys with.

No one else is so early to come, so late to leave. No one else has so much fun with your child. No one else can supply one baby with toys, candy, and clothes each week; and remember all the anniversaries and birthdays besides.

Grandmas are wonderful creatures: You can hurt them with thoughtless words, but you can't injure their love for you; you find them in the way often, but they'll always be there when needed most; you can feel you don't need them, but their guidance is a boon. Grandma is your week-end vacation, your grocery store, your baby sitter, and your new-toys department. Grandma is your friend, your companion, your helper, your child's favorite and — your mother!

And just when the formula's ruined, baby spits up, the house is in disorder, company's coming, and supper is burned, she appears with the untiring three words: "May I help?" — ANONYMOUS

Got a problem? An adult subject for discussion? A fun idea? You can talk it over in her column if you write to Helen Bottel, c/o the Independent-Journal, PO Box 330, 1040 B St., San Rafael, Ca. 94902.

Lean Summer For Teens, But The Church Can Help

By CYNTHIA PARSONS
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

This will probably be the toughest summer for teen-agers of any in the past 20 years. Tough, that is, because so few jobs are available. Our active, alert, growing young people need stabilizers. They need to know that there are many in the community who really care about them, who understand their restlessness, who are compassionate. This is where churches of all denominations, or church members acting informally, can be especially helpful.

WE KNOW OF one church in Tennessee, in a resort community, which serves early breakfast to any interested young person living or working in the area. It's a good chance for the youngsters themselves to get to know one another.

This may be the summer for churches to have "open" hours when any young person who wants to can come and "rap" with an adult. Not a formal confessional, not a time for sermonizing, but just a place to come to talk with interested adults about coping with the problems of growing up.

It may be the summer for churches to hold moderately priced suppers with sittings at 5 and 5:45 for teen-agers, and sittings at 6:30 and 7:15 for older people with the young people helping with the serving. A lot can be talked out, if the ear is sympathetic, while making 100 strawberry shortcakes!

IT MAY BE THE summer for asking the church to be a learning center. Young people seem especially interested these days in healings and in meditation. Those young people and adults in the church who have felt the healing effects of prayer might hold daytime sessions for interested youths.

Or, what about a Bible-study class? One church member might offer to talk about the literature of the Bible; another the history in the Old Testament; another the application of Bible truths to today's materialism.

The churches in a neighborhood or town might combine forces, with several congregations offering special activities for two weeks at a time, relieving the burden on any one and giving young people a variety of learning experiences.

If the church as an organization hasn't the means to operate a summer program, perhaps a few of the members could run their own program. Ministers as well as dedicated church members might be willing to list their telephones so that young people could contract them privately.

THESE NUMBERS could be posted in laundromats, on town bulletin boards, in supermarkets, in ice-cream parlors. The follow-up of a phone call might be an invitation to join a family for a day or even a week.

One church we know of makes a home for every Sunday School pupil away from their own parents for the summer. It may be living no farther away than next door, but is a regular exchange of services. One 11th-grader we know will live with a family, have her own room (she shares now with two others), and have responsibility for daytime care of two pre-schoolers. She'll also be provided with money for new school clothes at the end of the summer.

Asked how she came on this arrangement, the answer was: "At church. Every one of the pupils has a new home for the summer. And we're going to have prayer meeting every morning all together."

New Tomatoes Involve Risks With Low Acid

Extension specialist Audrey C. Burkart, Rutgers Cook College, advises adding vinegar to tomatoes canned by the boiling water-bath method. If you want to can them without added vinegar, use a pressure-canner to prevent spoilage.

Miss Burkart also warned against using agricultural lime in old recipes that call for slaked lime, or a limewater solution to keep acid produce firm. It's loaded with impurities, she said. Only the pure kind, labeled calcium hydroxide U.S.P., should be used. It is sold at drugstores.

ART REVIEW

'Good Vibes' Are Generated In Contemporary Folk Display

By ADA GARFINKEL

"Native Funk and Flash" is an exhibit of contemporary folk art at the Lester Gallery in Inverness. It accompanies the publication of a book of the same title by Alexandra Jacopetti and Jerry Wainwright.

The meticulous craftsmanship and the visual ornamentation of the "now culture" are part of the revolution of consciousness partially attained by the wearing of ethnic clothing with symbolic designs, according to Mrs. Jacopetti.

The designs are often universal symbols freely adapted and modified. Rainbows, butterflies, sun, wind, the phoenix, and mandalas are some of the significant talismans. They denote spiritual states or intimately shared physical and emotional relationships. They may also symbolize rituals or events.

The works of the 30 Bay Area artisans — many from West Marin — included in the show represent their way of finding alternate values to mass production. Each finds joy and satisfaction in handcraft and in the "good vibes" generated, which are visually extended in brightly emblazoned embroidery, jewelry, and inlaid work on garments, furniture, and handiwork.

One of the most striking works in the show is the wall-hung "healing Cloak" by Dorothy Flash. Derived from her feeling for Shaminism — in this case a benevolent one — the multi-colored scraps of fabric and wool build up layer-upon-layer to create this heavy-weighing ritual garment.

Another unusual garment is the cape designed by Neshama Franklin for "Eagle poet," Gino Clays Sky. Made of petal-like segments of textured velvet and corduroy fabrics in brown and tan tones, its immense, feather-like spread readily conjures up "the eagle spirit in the magic of poetry."

No less commanding than the fetishistic, one-of-a-kind necklaces made jointly by the team of Alex and Lee, are the sculptural (and sometimes erotic) constructions devised by them to display their work. Among them is the exotic and unforgettable "Samurai Mummy with a Rainbow Smile."

Included in the show are John Bauer's hand-carved chair with Buddhist-like figures; "Eckankar," a gigantic wooden "soul-travel" jigsaw puzzle designed by Hannah Bauer; satin "Moon Bags" by Alice and Susan Muyamoto, and "machismo" Oriental carpet-bags by Bill Sapios.

Also chimeras, crabs with human faces, and other dolls and animals by Karen Warford; ethnic garments by Alexandra Jacopetti and Laurel Burch, and ritualistic bread-dough sculptures by Mari Eade.

And a redwood planter, a jewelry cabinet, and a garment rack, all with anthropomorphic features and adjuncts by Al Garvey; a massive redwood door with relief design by Kit Anderson, and unusual clothes racks fashioned from driftwood by Kelly Hart, also contribute to the goal of "relevance."

This show will continue through Aug. 17, with viewing hours from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Wednesday through Sunday. It will then travel to various museums throughout the country under the sponsorship of the Lester Gallery, through the courtesy of the Western Association of Art Museums.

Treasurer Urges Red-Ink Currency

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Francine I. Neff, the new U.S. treasurer, seriously suggested today that the government start printing red money to make people more conscious of the federal budget deficit.

Mrs. Neff talked about the plan as she watched the first batch of bills bearing her name, and that of Treasury Secretary William E. Simon, roll off the presses at the Bureau of Printing and Engraving.

Greenbacks ought to be printed in red ink, she said.

"I think we need to remind the people of the need to balance the budget," said Mrs. Neff, a New Mexico Republican leader sworn into her largely ceremonial government job just two weeks ago.

The budget deficit is "my pet peeve," she said. "I think that red money would be a reminder to put the responsibility where it belongs."

The government cannot balance the budget unless citizens demand fewer government services, she said.

Mrs. Neff first broached the idea Friday at the Treasury's regular morning staff meeting. "It was interesting to see the reaction. Mr. Simon thought it was a pretty good idea, as a matter of fact."

Also watching the bill-printing ceremony was Peter Simon, 21, one of the Simon's seven children. He riffled through a stack of currency sheets, each containing 32 $1 bills bearing his father's flamboyant signature, and said it gave him "goose bumps."

"The name that was on the report card all those years is now on the dollar bill," he said.

Simon-Neff bills will begin showing up in general circulation soon in demoninations from $1 to $100 except for the $2 bill, which has not been printed since 1966.

U.S. Fuel Use Reduced

WASHINGTON (AP) — A White House spokesman says conservation efforts over the past year by industry and the federal government have reduced the nation's energy consumption by more than 8 per cent.

A statement by President Nixon, issued here yesterday as he prepared to return from his Moscow trip, said industry was meeting the target of a 5 per cent energy cutback which Nixon had urged a year ago.

Energy savings by the federal government have reached 30 per cent, far ahead of the 7 per cent goal set last year, the President said.

Wells Fargo, New York Bank Hike Prime Rate To 12 Per Cent

NEW YORK (UPI) — The prime bank lending rate—that charged top-rated corporate borrowers—moved to a record 12 per cent today with announcement by Bankers Trust Co., New York, and Wells Fargo, San Francisco, of quarter-point boosts to that level.

While not entirely unexpected —industry sources have long predicted a prime of 13 per cent or more in view of continued heavy business loan demand and the Federal Reserve's anti-inflation tight credit policy— timing of the move was surprising.

On Monday, First National Bank of Chicago, which had been expected to go to 12.07 per cent, held its base lending rate unchanged at 11.8 per cent in order "to assess the recent runup in money market rates which may be a temporary aberration caused by business borrowing for the midyear tax payment and semiannual statement date."

The Chicago bank uses a formula to compute its "floating" prime based on commercial paper rates which had climbed just enough in the banking week ended last Wednesday to suggest a lift to 12.07 per cent would be warranted. The bank said, despite this week's exception, it will continue to use its formula and the three-week average in the commercial paper rate might boost the formula guideline above the 12.07 level next week.

Colson Says Nixon Erred On Probe

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Charles W. Colson, who begins a minimum one year prison term next week, said today President Nixon made a mistake when he ignored a suggestion to appoint a special White House Watergate investigator.

"I thought the real solution for him would be to appoint a special counsel, a lawyer of stature, reputation and integrity and experience in criminal law," Colson said.

"My advice (on March 21, 1973) was to get the facts and get everything he could find out and then decide what he ought to do once he knew what the facts were," Colson said in a taped interview on the NBC Today Show.

"He was trying to be his own investigator and I guess...it was a mistake," Colson said. "I think he was wrong. I think if he had appointed someone to immediately come in and get the facts and whatever they were let the chips fall obviously we won't be here."

Colson's advice to Nixon came shortly after former presidential counsel John W. Dean III told the President that Watergate and its cover-up was a cancer growing on the presidency. The Colson-Nixon conversation was on a tape the White House has refused to release.

Colson, a former special counsel to Nixon, has pleaded guilty to obstruction of justice in connection with the Daniel Ellsberg trial. He was given a one to three year prison term and fined $5,000.

Colson also said that he never got the impression that the President would offer clemency to convicted conspirator E. Howard Hunt in return for his silence.

"When all the tapes are eventually revealed it will be very obvious that the President and I never discussed clemency for Hunt," Colson said.

Ownership Of Gold Cleared

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Legislation passed by the House yesterday would allow Americans to own gold for the first time in more than 40 years.

A provision allowing citizens to buy and sell the precious metal was part of a House measure authorizing $1.5 billion in U.S. contributions to the International Development Association. The bill passed by a 225-140 vote.

Private ownership of gold has been outlawed since 1933.

North Marin Water Tax Rate Drops

The North Marin County Water District board last night approved a preliminary 1974-75 budget of $1.5 million and dropped the tax rate. (Another water district story, page 1.)

Directors estimated the tax rate in the Novato area would be 8 cents per $100 assessed valuation, down 1 cent.

The proposed operating budget of $870,000 is up 15 per cent, including an 8.5 per cent pay raise, while the capital improvements budget of $663,000 is down from $1 million this year.

In a series of last minute changes the board reduced the budget $31,326.

The North Marin County Water District board also:

SHELLMAKER — Indicated it has no interest in annexing the Shellmaker Inc. property along the Petaluma River, opposite Black Point, where the firm plans a large boat harbor. Dist. Mgr. John O. Nelson said the firm wanted a "reading" on the board attitude, and members said the district lacks water to serve Shellmaker.

COAST GUARD — Approved a contract with the Coast Guard to provide a sewage system for the Coast Guard housing at Point Reyes Station at a cost of $398,000 to the Coast Guard and called for opening bids on the project Aug. 6. Director Patrick H. Heffernan, who said he wasn't happy with the environmental impact report, abstained.

HEALTH INSURANCE — Boosted the district contribution to health insurance coverage for employee dependents from $9 to $18 a month at a cost of $3,996. Chairman George A. Amaroli, who favored a boost to $15 abstained.

NEXT MEETING — Adjourned to 8 p.m. July 16 at West Marin School, Point Reyes Station.

Meeting Postponed

The regular meeting of the Marin County Redevelopment Agency scheduled for tomorrow has been postponed until 8 p.m. July 11 in housing authority offices, 47 Paul Drive, San Rafael, the agency announced.

Oak Manor Slide Plea Is Heeded

Marin County supervisors agreed yesterday to finance a $20,000 soils study into the causes of a creeping landslide in the troubled Oak Manor subdivision near Fairfax.

Unanimous approval of the soils study came after an hour-long hearing before a packed Civic Center audience made up mostly of Oak Manor residents.

The slide has already forced removal of one home and another was vacated last week for safety reasons, supervisors were told by Dr. Donald Falkenberg, spokesman for the homeowners' group. About six other homes are in immediate jeopardy, he added.

He blamed the slide, in part, on Julie Ann Crest, a private road started about 20 years ago but never completed. It lies uphill of the endangered homes.

Falkenberg said erosion of the road has created a large water basin which has produced downhill pressure on adjacent properties and on Oak Manor Drive.

He urged supervisors to declare it a public nuisance and abate the problem as well as to begin immediate repairs to Oak Manor Raod, one lane of which is not useable in places. Should Oak Manor Road fail, he said, about 55 homeowners at the top of the hill will be cut off.

His remarks brought prolonged applause followed by another resident's sharp criticism of Chairman Michael Wornum for nodding off during the address.

"I think it's utterly disgusting that you and Arnold Baptiste slept through this," he said to applause.

"I heard every word," Wornum responded.

"I wasn't asleep," Baptiste added, hotly.

County Counsel Douglas J. Maloney and Public Works Director Ray W. Foreaker Jr. said the county's position is that of another property owner in the area, willing to share in the repairs.

Two suits are already pending against the county, Maloney said, adding any action to correct the slide might be used against the county as either an admission of fault or as causing additional slide damage.

He advised the board to require "hold harmless agreements" from the property owners before committing the county to even a soils study.

(A "hold harmless agreement" means the county cannot be held liable for damage claims tied to repairs. It does not relieve the county of any prior liability.

(Some homeowners maintain the county is liable for allowing the subdivision to be built in the manner it was and for allowing Oak Manor Drive to be constructed over a filled valley.)

Supervisors, in agreeing to finance the soils study once "hold harmless agreements" are signed, did not commit themselves to correcting the slide or carrying out soils study recommendations.

Foreaker said it is unlikely any repairs will be made this year, in any event. He said the soils study would take four to six weeks.

Hawaii Fun Spots

HONOLULU (UPI) — Hawaii has three national parks, 46 state parks, 479 county parks, 44 golf courses and 24.4 miles of sandy and accessible beach. Facilities reporting more than 250,000 annual visitors include 15 national or state parks, the U.S.S. Arizona Memorial, the Honolulu Zoo, Sea Life Park, Waikiki Aquarium, the Mormon Temple Grounds and Polynesian Cultural Center.

Fairfax Land Put On List As Park Site

The Marin Town and Country Club in Fairfax was added yesterday to the county's shopping list of projects to be funded with a windfall park and recreation allocation from the state. (Another Marin County Board of Supervisors story, page 1.)

Adding the club to the list was approved unanimously by supervisors at the urging of colleague Peter R. Arrigoni Jr., who said the cities of Fairfax and San Anselmo had expressed interest in a joint purchase.

Funding will come from the statewide parks bond measure approved by voters last month. The county's share is about $430,000, while the 11 cities will divide another $430,000 based on population.

Other projects on the county's list include acquisition of more land for McNear's Beach, facilities at the John F. McInnis Park, purchase of the Garlick property adjacent to Stafford Lake Park and acquisition of a redwood grove in the San Geronimo Valley.

Those items were recommended unanimously by the Marin County Parks, Recreation and Open Space Commission.

A decision on how to allocate the county's $430,000 share among the various projects will be made at a later meeting.

The move to add the Marin Town and Country Club is significant in that it is a departure from past county policy of only funding parks of "countywide importance."

Supervisor Arnold M. Baptiste said he supported the addition because "it goes to the issue of decentralizing recreation."

Baptiste has struggled bitterly in the past with Supervisor Robert A. Roumiguiere over the question of local versus regional parks and recreation.

Roumiguiere was absent during yesterday's discussion, having departed early to return to his vacation which was interrupted by yesterday's meeting.

Bon Air Road Move Compromise Sought

Marin County supervisors yesterday proposed a joint committee meeting with members of the Marin Hospital District board to iron out differences over realignment of Bon Air Road.

Supervisors also reiterated their intention to finance the road job once hospital district voters approve an $8.6 million bond issue for first phase expansion of the Kentfield hospital.

Hospital directors last week sued the county for failing to honor a 1968 agreement to realign Bon Air west of its present alignment to accommodate hospital expansion.

The suit was provoked when supervisors deleted $340,000 from this year's budget, saying the realignment made no sense until hospital district voters approve needed funds for expansion.

Hospital directors, meanwhile, have once again postponed going to the voters with the bond issue. It had been tentatively set for November.

The meeting urged by supervisors would be attended by two members of each board. No committee members have been named.

The Marin County Board of Supervisors Also:

PLANNING — Met for 90 minutes with the county planning commission to discuss community plans. Supervisors said such plans should be more precise than the county general plan but not as precise as the Strawberry-Ring Mountain plan, which proposed how the property owner should develop Ring Mountain.

BUDGET — Was urged by Mill Valley City Councilman Jean S. Barnard to adopt her city's method of reviewing a budget in which it is reviewed completely first before additions or deletions are made.

APPOINTMENTS — Appointed Jean Berensmeier of Lagunitas to the auditorium, cultural and fair advisory board and Charles Griffin and Daniel Lennon to the Stinson Beach Flood Control Advisory Committee.

CONTRACTS — Approved labor contracts with the Marin Association of Public Employees and sheriff's deputies and officers. The board also approved a 10 percent pay hike for mid-management employees.

ROSS HOSPITAL — Approved a contract with Ross General Hospital for use of Short-Doyle Medi-Cal funds in treatment of psychiatric patients. The contract calls for a provisional rate of $100 per day for inpatient services, $30 per day for partial care services, $25 admission fee and $10 per hour for therapy.

JUVENILE JUSTICE — Postponed for two weeks discussion of a juvenile justice commission report critical of the operation of Juvenile Hall.

YOUTH COMMISSION — Increased the age limit for youth commissioners from 18 to 21. Commissioners have complained in the past that they no sooner get appointed than they have to resign.

ORDINANCE — Asked the county counsel's office to draft a proposed ordinance aimed at allowing reassessment of homes and businesses damaged after the March 1 lien date. The action was requested by the owners of Tarantino's Seafood Grotto in Bolinas, damaged by fire March 29.

HOTEL — Increased the county hotel-motel tax from five per cent to 6 per cent of a lodgers bill. The increase in tax is expected to raise an additional $9,000 this fiscal year.

CLOSED SESSION — Held a brief closed session to discuss suits against the county by homeowners in the Oak Manor area of Fairfax and by the Marin Hospital District.

APPEAL — Rejected the appeal of Sidney Churgel of the $550 cost of an environmental impact report on his proposed land division of 30 acres in Inverness.

Possible Cause Of Fatal Blaze

PORT CHESTER, N.Y. (UPI) — There were indications today that the flash fire that killed 24 young people at a Discotheque early Sunday morning may have been set off by an electrical failure in an adjoining bowling alley.

Joseph Butler, an investigator for the Westchester County District Attorney's office, refused comment on the report of the electrical mishap except to say, "I would not say the reports are completely untrue."

More than 50 investigators sifted through the charred remains of the building yesterday and quizzed more than 100 people, including the survivors.

Environmental Panel Elects

Donald R.Dickenson, an architectural student, has been elected chairman of the Novato Environmental Quality Committee succeeding Joseph Y. Seminario.

Guy Napolitano and Lynn Childs were elected cochairmen Monday night.

The committee, unable to obtain copies of the draft of a growth management ordinance from the planning staff, passed a resolution asking the city council to direct staff members to provide copies.

Dickenson said committee members need copies of the draft "so we can provide input."

Cleaner Burned In Truck Fire

A San Rafael man suffered second degree burns to his hands, face and arms yesterday as he was preparing to clean a rug in a home in Novato.

James Wilson, 18, of 100 Bayo Vista Way, an employee of the Scrub-A-Dub-Dub Rug Company in San Rafael, was injured when a water heater pilot light in his truck ignited cleaning fluid fumes and caused a flash fire explosion.

He was taken to Novato General Hospital where he was reported to be in good condition today.

Cardinal Attacks Nude Beach Proposal

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Cardinal Timothy Manning yesterday attacked the city's proposed ordinance to set aside areas for public nudity as "an assault on our sense of decency."

Manning, a spiritual leader of the Roman Catholic Archdiocese in Los Angeles, said the measure, which still awaits final approval, is "another instance of the permissiveness that is corroding our culture and victimizing our young people."

Board Backs Coast Guard Anchor Rules

Proposed regulations to prohibit houseboats and other vessels from anchoring in the navigable waters of Richardson Bay were endorsed without reservation yesterday by Marin County supervisors.

The new regulations, in effect, would give the Coast Guard jurisdiction to keep the Richardson Bay waterways clear of dozens of maverick houseboats now at anchor.

"This will go a long way toward cleaning up the houseboat mess," commented Supervisor Robert A. Roumiguiere, an avid boater who has long sought removal of the houseboats, referring to them as "a cancer."

Coast Guard officials have slated a public hearing on the proposed anchorage regulations Monday at 8 p.m. at the Central School auditorium in Sausalito.

As outlined yesterday, the restricted waters lie northwest of an imaginary line running from Strawberry Point to about a quarter mile off Sausalito Point.

The line neatly skirts the controversial dry docks, which are mired in bay mud and have been a headache for county officials.

Any boat inboard of that line would be prohibited from anchoring except in case of emergency. A "general anchorage area" of about 800-feet by 800-feet is proposed for deep water near the dry docks.

Supervisors urged the Coast Guard to consider shifting the anchorage area elsewhere or reducing its size because it lies in a heavily used recreational channel.

County public works officials, who several years ago waged an unsuccessful battle to remove the illegal houseboats, said yesterday they find the new regulations "most satisfactory."

Irving L. Schwartz, land development engineer for the department, said his office had not encouraged them. "The Coast Guard just came up with them," he said.

In its announcement of the public hearing, the Coast Guard said the new restrictions were proposed because the "increased vessel traffic in and usage of Richardson Bay ... has resulted in the development of unsafe conditions."

Nonsleepers Can Try Free Hotel

That's the word from Stanford University which has announced it set up a specially equipped dormitory to study insomnia.

The school is looking for insomnia volunteers in an effort to determine why persons can't go to sleep.

"Insomnia affects some 20 million in this country," Dr. William C. Dement, director of the sleep disorders clinic, said yesterday. "There might well be 100 entirely different causes of troubled sleep, but until we have the opportunity to study hundreds of sufferers, we just won't know."

JAMES C. DUKES
Named peace officer

Sgt. Dukes Is Officer Of The Year

Sgt. James C. Dukes of the California Highway Patrol has been awarded the "Peace Officer of the Year Award" by the International Foot Printers Association.

Dukes, who is celebrating his 20th anniversary with the force this month, was cited for his handling of preventing suicides on the Golden Gate Bridge, his work with local communities, and his part in helping to prevent a train and car collision at the junction of highways 37 and 121 earlier this year.

The distinction was bestowed upon him by 7,000 of his law enforcement peers at a convention in Seattle.

His work in developing driver education programs in Marin County high schools and cooperation with the Independent-Journal in devising traffic safety advertisements played a significant part in his achieving the award.

Dukes began his law enforcement career as a guard at Alcatraz prison in 1949. In 1954, he joined the highway patrol where he was assigned to Santa Barbara. For the past 10 years he has worked out of Corte Madera, where he also lives at 38 Paloma Drive, patroling Marin County and the Golden Gate Bridge.

Denial Urged In Raising Bar Fees

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The Legislature was urged yesterday to deny a 45 per cent membership fee increase — from $100 to $145 — sought by the State Bar of California.

Auditor General Harvey Rose said the nearly 50,000-member organization of attorneys sought the fee hike as a "hedge" against inflation and to beef up its staff.

But in a report released by Assemblyman Vincent Thomas, D-San Pedro, chairman of the Joint Legislative Audit Committee, the auditor general said the State Bar failed to provide justification for the increase.

Rose recommended that the Legislature turn down the request until the bar provides a justification for increased staff in a written analysis based on workload figures and standards.

The bar is asking that annual membership fees be boosted from the current $100 to up to $145 by 1982. If approved it would be implemented gradually starting in 1976.

Parade Tonight

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Some 8,000 members of the Lions Club have scheduled a parade this evening in San Francisco, marching from the financial district to city hall.

ALMANAC

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Today is Wednesday, July 3, the 184th day of 1974 with 181 to follow.

The moon is approaching its full phase. The morning stars are Mercury, Venus, Jupiter and Saturn. The evening star is Mars.

American author John Mason Brown was born July 3, 1900.

Also on this day in history:

In 1819, the Bank of Savings in New York City opened — first of its kind. The first 80 depositors banked a total of $2,897.

In 1892, a strike began at the Carnegie Steel Co. in Homestead, Pa. Before it ended the following Nov. 20, seven guards and 11 strikers and spectators had been shot to death.

In 1972, North and South Korea announced agreement on reunification of that Asian country.

A thought for the day: French novelist Anatole France said: "People who have NO weaknesses are terrible . . . there is NO way to take advantage of them."

Suit Preference Signals Reentry For A Ruffing Trick

The chief use of the suit preference signal is to tell your partner how to get you back in the lead so that you can give him a ruffing trick. When the contract is no-trump, you can use the signal to indicate where your reentry is.

Opening lead — ♡ Q

WITH ACE

West opens the queen of hearts, East puts up the king to unblock and South holds up his ace. East continues the hearts, and South takes the ace.

Now South tries the diamond finesse, losing to the king. How does East get the lead back to his partner for the hearts?

If East guesses wrong, declarer will take four diamonds, five clubs, and a heart. Very embarrassing for the defense.

USE SIGNAL

When South wins the ace of hearts at the second trick, West can follow suit with a high heart or alow heart. The high heart should mean one thing, and the low heart should mean something else.

The simplest meaning is that a high card means a high suit, while a low card means a low suit. In this case, since West has his entry in the highest suit, spades, he plays the jack of hearts on the second round of that suit.

SPADES BEST

This shows that his entry is in spades. East returns a spade when he wins the king of diamonds, and West takes the rest of the hearts, defeating the contract.

If West had the ace of clubs instead of the ace of spades, he would play his slowest heart at the second trick. Either way, he can signal the correct information to East.

DAILY QUESTION

♠ - Q J 9
♥ - A 5
♦ - 10 9 2
♣ - A Q J 9 2.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two clubs.

Limelighters' Event Will Be On July 21

"Reunion '74," a program starring Glen Yarbrough and the Limeliters, Limelighters, be performed July 21 at 8:30 p.m. in the Marin Memorial Theater in the Civic Center.

MOST OF WEST CLEAR

Oregon Campus Research Keeps 20,000 Animals

CORVALLIS, Ore. (UPI) — Oregon State University utilizes more than 20,000 animals annually in university research projects. They include cows, horses, sheep, swine, poultry, snakes, spiders, fleas, crayfish, rates, guinea pigs, rabbits and non-human primates.

Ten buildings on campus house the university's laboratory animal population. Their cages must be washed weekly and racks holding the animals, every two weeks.

Research basically is to benefit mankind, but Dr. Nephi M. Patton, director of Laboratory Animal Resources at the school said: "We've discovered benefits to animals, too."

Leave The Smog Devices Alone

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The California State Automobile Association warns that tampering with smog devices to improve car mileage is asking for trouble.

Not only is it illegal, the CSAA adds, but tampering could lead to worse mileage.

Today's engines are specifically designed for emission devices, the CSAA said. The timing, camshafts, compression ratios and carburetion are geared to work with the smog equipment. Any modification of the system could increase use and even damage the entire works.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

It's A Wonder Human's Hands Aren't More Often Hurt Today

Medical science has developed marvelous substitutes for damaged or missing hands, but nothing is quite like nature's original piece of engineering. Hands are taken for granted until somethings happens to restrict some or all of the functions of the fingers, thumb, or entire structure.

It now may be difficult to hold, clutch, grip, button, zip, tie, pull, twist, or turn. Perhaps most missed will be the ability to lift, carry, pull, pick, sort, sew, hit, or push.

THERE ALSO MAY be a loss of the ability to touch, feel, write, examine, manipulate, point, or count. The hands also are used for work, play, love, and protection. Some people would be speechless if their hands were tied behind their backs. Unfortunately, hands are where "the action is" and it is surprising they do not suffer more injuries.

Modern man gets into trouble when he does not treat with respect his sophisticated and high-speed mechanized tools. Hand injuries are, perhaps, the most common industrial accidents.

They also are very important in terms of disability, and the services of doctors skilled in hand surgery are in great demand.

CERTAIN TOOLS are especially dangerous and should never be used unless the operator is alert and has all his faculties. Devices that shear, cut, or chop can slice off a hand or finger in a moment. Examples include scissors, cleavers, axes, and large knives. Hard-edged objects, such as a door or drawer, that accidentally close on the hand, can do extensive damage.

The same can be said of a wringer, mangler, gears, chain and sprocket, and belts and pulleys. Always turn off power lawn mowers and snow blowers before trying to remove a twig or stone.

Home workshops and kitchens are loaded with hazardous tools, including the rotary saw and food mixers. Instruments or machines (overhead garage doors) with a smashing action also are dangerous, and let us not underestimate devices with a puncturing potential such as ice picks, screwdrivers, and drills.

Rings, wristwatches, and bracelets should be removed before working with electric tools. And always remember, good gloves are a hand's best friend.

Dr. Van Dellen welcomes reader questions. While he cannot reply to them individually, he will answer those of general interest in his column. Write to Dr. Van Dellen, in care of c/o the Independent-Journal, PO Box 330, 1040 B St., San Rafael, Ca. 94902.

LOSS OF CONSCIOUSNESS

H. A. writes: What is the difference between fainting and a heart attack?

REPLY

Ordinary fainting is a temporary loss of consciousness, often of emotional or reflex origin. The individual rests 10 to 20 minutes and goes about his business, depending upon the cause. A person having a heart attack may also lose consciousness due to stoppage of the heart or an irregularity of the heart. This is fatal unless the pump can be restarted.

PURPLE ANKLE

C. L. writes: What would cause on ankle to swell and develop a reddish-purple color?

REPLY

ANTICOAGULANTS

A. T. writes: Can anticoagulants prevent heart attacks?

REPLY

Yes, but they are seldom used unless the individual has survived a previous heart attack (or other thrombotic lesion). The rish of having blood that does not clot may be greater than having a heart attack. Let well enough alone.

COSMETIC SURGERY

REPLY

You can't make a silk purse out of a sow's ear. But it is remarkable what some of our plastic surgeons have been able to do.

CURBSTONE MEDICINE

M. R. writes: Our doctor lives next door and is friendly as he can be when we see him at his office. He answers all questions, never seems rushed, and never fails us during an emergency. However, if I ask him a medical question at a party, he seems a bit perturbed. Why do you suppose he does this?

REPLY

Many physicians like to enjoy themselves at parties and prefer not to talk shop or give curbstone consultations. After all, he can't go into details or examine you as he would in his office.

Puerto Rico Feels Electrical Inflation

SAN JUAN, P.R. (UPI) — Several luxury hotels on the island have begun imposing a $1 a day surcharge on guests to pay for increased electricity costs.

Kalmbach's New 'Home' A Secret

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Former Presidential lawyer Herbert Kalmbach, amid a shroud of secrecy, was taken to an undisclosed detention center in the Baltimore-Washington area late Monday to begin serving a six to 18 month prison term for his role in the Watergate scandal.

News of Kalmbach's surrender came after he voluntarily surrendered to a U.S. Marshal at Baltimore-Washington International Airport. Under normal procedure he would have surrendered at the marshal's office at the Baltimore courthouse, but a spokesman for the U.S. Marshal's Service in Washington said the time and location of Kalmbach's surrender were not disclosed at Kalmbach's request.

"He apparently wants to keep a low profile," the spokesman said.

North Sea Oil Rig Threats Reported

LONDON (UPI) — Offshore oil rigs in the North Sea have been added to the list of possible targets for Palestinian commando attacks in this country, a police spokesman said yesterday.

FBI Slices Force In Hearst Case

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The small army of 150 FBI agents working on the Patricia Hearst case has been reduced by half in recent weeks, it was learned yesterday.

Charles Bates, agent in charge of the investigation into the Feb. 4 abduction of Miss Hearst, 20, said the reductions began after six hard-cored members of the terrorist Symbionese Liberation Army were killed in a Los Angeles police shootout on May 17.

The FBI said Miss Hearst was kidnaped by the SLA. Later she was named as a federal fugitive because the political terrorists apparently converted her to ther cause. Miss Hearst has said in tape recorded messages that she renounced her way of life as a member of the wealthy newspaper Hearst family.

She is sought in the Los Angeles area along with known SLA survivors William and Emily Harris.

A report in the San Francisco Examiner said that although the FBI force working on the Hearst case out of San Francisco has been slashed, a large number of black agents are temporarily on loan to Los Angeles from other bureaus to aid in the hunt for Miss Hearst and the Harrises.

One theory is that Miss Hearst and the Harrises are being provided sanctuary in one of the black communities there.

Cadet Fighting Ouster Over His Marriage

NEW YORK (UPI) — A West Point cadet barred from graduating last month because he was married filed suit in U.S. District Court yesterday charging the academy regulation is unconstitutional because it denied him a "fundamental right."

Donald M. Boyd, Lexington, Mass., alleged that the regulation barring marriage is an "unwarranted and illegal incursion" of his private life.

Boyd was scheduled to graduate last June 5, but a month before graduation a letter writer notified academy superintendent, Lt. Gen. William Knowlton that the cadet was married and a father.

Boyd admitted he had married Joanne Moon in December, 1972, and that they were the parents of Christin Boyd.

Avocado Rustling? Yes, It's No Joke

FALLBROOK (AP) — A standup comic could probably get 30 minutes and 90 laughs with tales of "The Avocado Rustlers," but it's no joke to growers of the fruit in Southern California.

Midway through this season's harvest, thieves have stolen almost $1 million worth of the state's $28-million crop. Most of the avocados are grown in the Fallbrook area, in San Diego County, and nestled among leathery leaves in often-unfenced, rural orchards, the green fruit are tempting targets.

"The losses are in the millions of pounds, not counting the penny-ante stuff such as 50 or 100 pounds, which are common losses," says G. J. Clasen, president of the Avocado Growers Bargaining Council.

"A grower lost 1,600 pounds once, and I'm not even considering thefts like that. Whole groves of 10 or 15 acres have been stripped completely."

A few ranchers and grove managers are carrying shotguns and have new watchdogs. Burglar alarm systems have been installed. Signs warn: "Avocado rustlers will be prosecuted."

But none of the measures — plus a state law making theft of more than $50 worth of avocados grand larceny and growers' reward of $250 for information leading to conviction of fruit filchers — has deterred the thieves.

But says Deputy Sheriff Jerry McGuffin: "It's hard to see anyone in a grove, especially a mature grove. He can drive a truck in and elude you 100 feet away." He couldn't recall an arrest.

It is also difficult to prosecute. In the last year there have been no successful prosecution of avocado thieves.

"We've had no cooperation from the sheriff's department, mainly because it's so difficult and the way the laws are written it's impossible to get a conviction," said Clasen.

"Once the fruit is off the trees, even if it's still in the grove and in boxes, you can't prove it came off those trees."

Lee Taylor, a San Diego County supervisor, thinks he has the answer with an idea borrowed from neighboring Imperial County where a person needs a bill of sale if found with so mucy hay.

If 40 pounds of avocados or more are found in a person's possession, he would have to prove ownership.

Higher Grades For Girls Banned

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — San Francisco's Lowell High School cannot maintain different admission standards for girls and boys, a federal court rules yesterday.

The U.S. Court of Appeals for the 9th Circuit said it was not constitutional for the school district to require a 3.5 grade average on the basis of 4.0 for girls, while boys were admitted with a 3.25 average to maintain a balance of the sexes in the school.

However, the appellate court said the existence of Lowell as a college preparatory high school with high grades in junior high required for admission was not a violation of the rights of those students excluded from the school.

TELEVISION REVIEW

July 4 Documentary '2,251 Days' Sparkles

By JAY SHARBUTT

NEW YORK (AP) — The long July 4th weekend is upon us and I don't know of many who'd pass up the brilliant flash of the aerial bomb for the dull glow of the TV set. But make an exception tomorrow at 8:30 p.m.

The reason: An extraordinary public TV documentary called "2,251 Days," filmed by station KQED (Channel 9) in San Francisco. It concerns one of the best-known U.S. prisoners of war North Vietnam freed in March 1973.

Reunited with his wife and three sons in Palo Alto after 6½ years a a POW, he may strike some as a philosophical fossil, a man with an unswerving faith in his nation's leadership despite Vietnam, Watergate and the complex, pervasive doubts they raised.

But KQED's study (filming began at the Stratton home a month and a half before his release) tries to understand the sources of his faith, his beliefs and does it with no small amount of empathy.

In the process, it etches a fine portrait of a guy you'd enjoy debating, having a beer with, and of a family you'd value even if the old man did grouse occasionally about the long-haired of this world.

CMDR. RICHARD A. STRATTON
Subject of TV show

Most importantly, the show keeps its narrative to a bare minimum, giving its subjects a clear, uncluttered forum for their views and emotions, be it in a kitchen or a backyard St. Patrick's Day beer bust.

It lets the Strattons tell their story, augmenting it with the recollections of two of his excellmates — Douglas Hegdahl and Cmdr. Richard Mullin — and those of veteran antiwar activist David Dellinger, who once visited Hegdahl and Stratton in Hanoi.

A deeply religious Catholic and son of a Massachusetts shipping clerk, Stratton comes across in most instances with the warm, dry Irish wit common to citizens of his state.

But he shows real anger when discussing the torture that made him confess "crimes" against North Vietnam, an act he again repudiates as "a complete and totally false confession."

Prison-inspired hatred also shows up in his description of his captors: "They have an armed group of paranoid children who have a national inferiority complex."

The anger shows again, when he says the "worst hurt" the POWs brought out of Vietnam suffered was that "there are American citizens who choose to believe the enemy in the foreign capital and not believe their president or their government."

Strong, bitter words that perhaps time and understanding will change. But the only real way to assess the man who said them is to watch "2,251 Days" from start to finish tomorrow night.

The show runs about two hours and 20 minutes. That's a lot of time, but the program contains a lot that helps explain this Navy commander who still keeps an uncommon faith in an era of common disbelief.

State Court Knocks Out Cuts In Welfare Recipient Grants

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — California welfare regulations that reduce payments to families whose children also receive aid were declared invalid yesterday by the state Supreme Court.

The court in a 4-3 opinion struck down a regulation that reduced payments to recipients who share housing with those getting payments from other welfare programs. It also knocked out a regulation cutting down payments to children who have been taken into the homes of non-needy relatives.

The first ruling came in the cases of Laura Cooper, Richmond, a recipient of aid to the disabled who lives with her five minor children and gets AFDC benefits on their behalf, and of Moice Paladino, San Francisco, another recipient of aid to the disabled who also receives benefits on behalf of her minor son.

The challenged regulation reduced the AFDC grant for the Cooper children from $320 to $287 a month, and the grant to the Paladino child from $115 to $92 a month.

The welfare department made the reduction on the grounds that because the family lived together it constituted a "non-cash economic benefit." The court held that this concept was "completely at odds with the flat grant system of welfare benefits that lives at the heart of the 1971 welfare reform legislation."

The companion case involved three families who had their AFDC payments decreased when the children were taken into the homes of non-needy relatives. Payments to the William Waits of Alameda County for three grandchildren and three great-grandchildren were reduced from $360 to $259 per month; payments to a second family for two neices and a nephew were reduced from $235 per month to $140, and a third family had its payments for a needy grandchild cut from $115 to $40 per month.

"The department has so enmeshed itself in fictitious and misleading labels for the sake of reducing welfare costs that it has obfuscated the purpose of the underlying statute. the preservation, so far as possible, of the family unit, and the more fundamental purpose of the preservation of the health of homeless children," said the majority opinion, written by Justice Mathew O. Tobriner.

Pair Will Face Trial On Fracas

A San Rafael man and a Novato woman were bound over to Marin Superior Court yesterday for trial on a variety of charges stemming from a scuffle with Novato police June 17.

Held to answer on a felony count of assault with a deadly weapon and misdemeanor charges of drunken driving and giving false information to a policeman was Billie Landers Robinson, 42.

Mrs. Greene tried to prevent Hill and another policeman from taking Robinson into custody, according to testimony at a preliminary hearing yesterday before Judge David R. Baty on municipal court.

Teeter-Totters At End Again

SAN LEANDRO (UPI) — The old champions are going it again.

Teen Center, Inc., of San Leandro, says it is the official teeter-totter record holder in the latest Guinness record book and intends to be in the next edition by doubling the old mark of 312 hours.

A couple of teen-agers has gone 384 hours and is going for 624.

Severe Quake Is Recorded In Pacific

BERKELEY (UPI) — The University of California's seismographical station recorded a severe earthquake yesterday near New Zealand in the South Pacific.

The quake measured 7.5 on the Richter scale and its epicenter was 7,400 miles southwest of Berkeley.

Equal Rights Drive In Final Lap?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The campaign to outlaw sex discrimination in the United States is over for 1974, but supporters of the Equal Rights Amendment remain confident they can finish the job next year.

ERA backars are organizing to win ratification of the 27th Amendment to the Constitution in five or more of the 17 states which have failed to approve it since Congress sent it to the 50 legislatures in 1972. Three states ratified ERA in 1974, raising the total to 33, or five short of the three-fourths needed. The amendment lapses if not ratified by March, 1979.

By some counts, ERA ratifications total only 31, because both the Nebraska and Tennessee legislatures have voted to rescind previous ratifications. Many legal authorities believe revision is not possible, and at the least predict a tough battle, probably in Congress, before these actions can be recognized.

There also is a legal controversy over the status of ratification in Illinois, where the amendment was ratified by a simple majority in both legislative houses whereas opponents contend three-fifths is necessary. The matter is before a three-judge federal court, and ERA supporters meantime are not counting this as ratification.

The legislatures of Maine, Ohio and Montana approved ERA this year. In addition to Nebraska and Tennessee, others on the list are Alaska, California, Colorado, Connecticut, Delaware, Hawaii, Idaho, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New Mexico, New York, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Dakota, Texas, Vermont, Washington, West Virginia, Wisconsin and Wyoming.

All 17 states where ERA has failed have legislative sessions in 1975, and backers expect the final five to be in the ratification fold by this time next year. Hopes are highest for Illinois, North Dakota, Indiana, North Carolina, Oklahoma and Florida.

Both houses of Congress approved ERA by the required two-thirds margin after decades of battling by women's rights advocates. The amendment, as it went to the states, simply prohibits enactment of laws which discriminate on the basis of sex.

Legal authorities say the thrust would be to strike down federal, state and local laws which place legal restrictions on one sex that do not apply to the other. In the case of laws which confer benefits on only one sex, the effect of ERA would be to require equality.

The debate has been highly emotional in many states. Opposition in some localities has centered on charges that ERA would outlaw separate public toilet facilities for men and women, or make women subject to military conscription.

Supporters deny the toilet charge, contending the constitutional right of privacy would not be overridden. While conceding that Selective Service might be unisexed, they note that the draft is no longer in effect and deny ERA would require the military to send women into combat.

If Nixon Impeached, Convicted Appeal Road Grim, Expert Says

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (UPI) — A Yale law professor said today that if President Nixon is impeached by the House and convicted by the Senate, it is unlikely that he could appeal to any court in the land.

Prof. Charles L. Black Jr., who said it is unlikely that any court would attempt to act on any appeal, defended Nixon regarding executive privilege and opposed any radio or television coverage of impeachment or trial proceedings.

Black's findings were disclosed at a news conference to discuss his book on impeachment that will be published tomorrow by Yale University Press.

Black, a Luce Professor of Jurisprudence at Yale, said there are no historical or constitutional grounds for "the supposition that the Supreme Court was expected to have anything to do with impeachments, or Senate trials or appeals."

"As a practical matter, no court is ever going to succeed in putting an impeached and convicted President back in office." He said, "It is unlikely that any court will try. The only thing that could result from a judicial attempt to do this would be a terrible constitutional crisis."

Black said he supported Nixon's views on the importance of maintaining confidentiality.

He said it may be claimed that particular substantive information cannot be divulged without harm to some vital national interest and that disclosure of conversations "will impede the processes of consultation in the White House."

Black said participants in White House conversations would always "feel on parade, if they know that revelation of what they say can easily be compelled by any committee of Congress or by a court and their perhaps tentative positions then publicized."

The professor rejected the theory that a president can waive his privilege of confidentialty. He said the act of waiver is "wholgy wrong-headed, for it must make any President reluctant to reveal anything for fear he will be held to waived his privilege altogether."

In his opposition to any broadcast or telecast of impeachment and trial proceedings, Black said "radio, television and cameras have no more place in this solemn business than they have in any other trial, and for the same reasons."

He said the media acts upon "that which they purport to observe" and "maximizes the chances of development of public pressure for some given result."

Two Are Booked In Pot Growing

Two Mill Valley men were arrested yesterday after 200 four-foot-high marijuana plants were found growing in their back yard, according to police.

Neighbors had complained to police that the plants were growing over the top of a fence in the yard at 302 Sycamore Avenue.

Andrew Michael Schultz, 25, and Ronald Steven Paul, 25, were booked yesterday afternoon at Marin County Jail for possession and cultivation of marijuana.

They were held in lieu of $2,500 bail each to appear today in Marin Municipal Court.

Salary Discussion

The Mill Valley City Council will discuss salary negotiations now ongoing with city employees in a closed session today at 6:30 p.m. at city hall.

Death Sometimes Knows No Age

It has been a sad time for some of the members and parents of the Marin Youth Soccer Association. They are still trying to get over the sudden and quite unexpected death of one of their own — 10-year-old Wykeham Smith of Ross.

A few days ago they probably had never heard of the Reyes' Syndrome. It's a rare ailment which creates a toxic reaction to a virus. It took the life of Wykeham last Thursday in Reno. He would have been 11 on July 25. The flame was snuffed out much too early.

He was an all-star player all three of his years in the Marin soccer program and a natural athlete. He was on his way to becoming a winning ski racer.

His father, Dick Smith, was treasurer and one of the founders of the Marin Youth Soccer Association and his mother, Joan, helped start the Ross recreation program five years ago. As a family, they were all into sports for kids.

Instead of flowers, the young man's family wanted contributions to be sent to the Wykeham Smith Memorial Fund of the Marin Youth Soccer Association, Box 773 in Ross, or the Wykeham Smith Memorial Fund for Medical Research on Reyes' Syndrome, Box 1101, Ross.

The soccer association plans to set up a summer program for youngsters with the funds received. Those people don't want the name of Wykeham Smith to be forgotten.

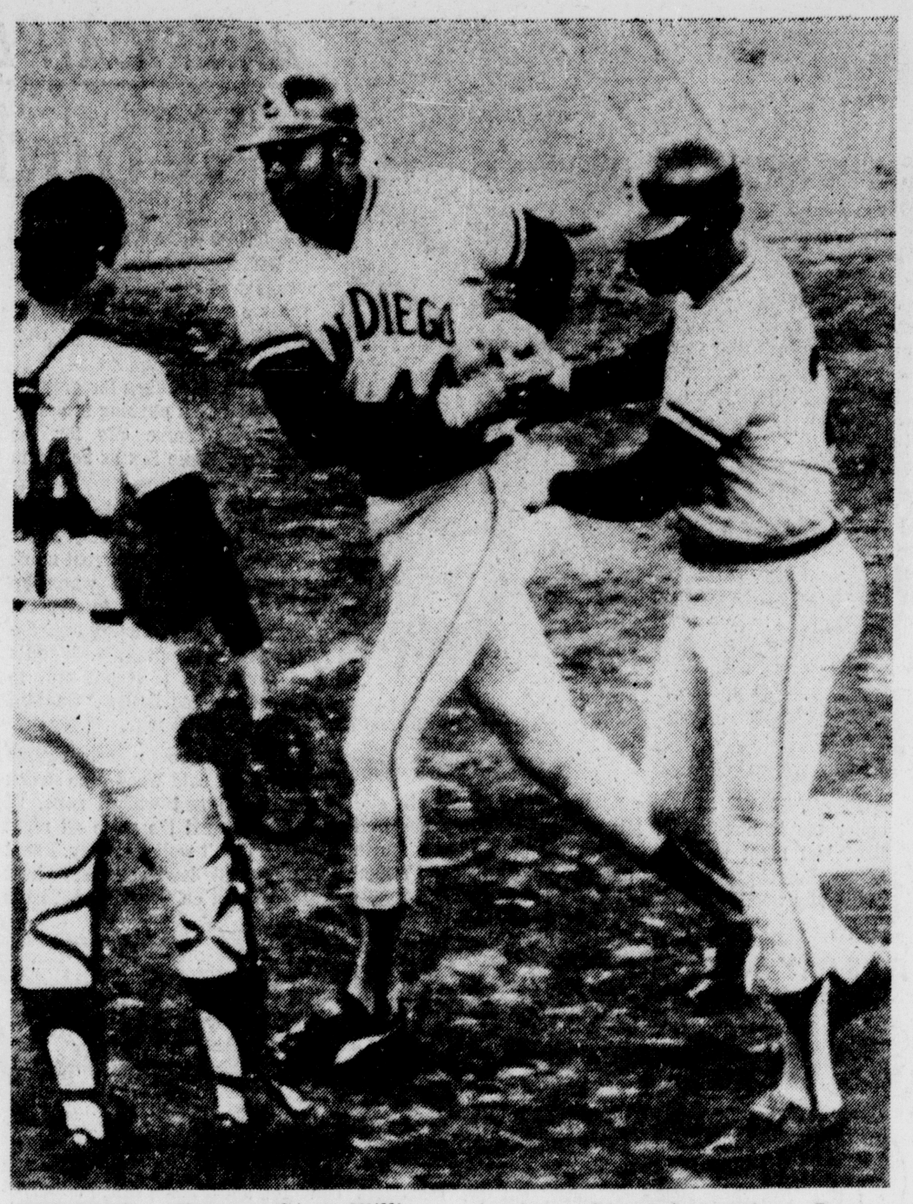

VOLUNTEERS stepped forward to save a program which will make it possible for handicapped children to learn how to swim. A plea from the program sponsors in this space last week called for volunteers to help the recreation program which had the backing of Red Cross, Cerebral Palsy of Marin, Easter Seals and Marin County Superintendent of Schools office. Beverly Levy, volunteer coordinator in special education, writes to say that it looks like the program will continue after more volunteers agreed to help out.

TAMALPAIS HIGH SCHOOL graduate Greg Ford of Marin City will get his trip to the U.S. Wrestling Federation national championships July 25-27 in Iowa City, Iowa. Greg had a chance to compete in the 114.5 pound class but the Bay Area Wrestling Association didn't have the funds to send him. Bill Hampton, secretary-treasurer of the association, called to say friends have started the ball rolling with contributions — including a $100 check from Walt and Janet Smith of Mill Valley — and the Tamalpais High School District will help out if the $350 goal falls short.

THERE ARE RECORDS, and there are records, but a group of 19 young men from the Petaluma-Santa Rosa area is claiming a new world record for baby buggy pushing.

During a 24-hour period last weekend the group pushed a buggy 287.5 miles to surpass the Round Table of Australia mark of 271.8 miles in the Guinness Book of World Records. The thing was led and organized by Stan Hockerson and Fred Kenyon as a fund-raiser for the Valley of the Moon Track Club. It all took place at Santa Rosa Junior College's track.

BILL BELANDER, a star player last year at Sonoma State College, will be attending the Warriors tryout camp at the end of July as a free agent. The tryout was arranged for him by departing Sonoma State coach Bill Trumbo. He was a forward for the Cossacks, but at 6-foot-3 he knows his only chance as a pro would be as a guard so he's going to try to make the transition.

BIG MAC — Former Giant Willie McCovey (center) crossed home plate last night after hitting his sixth home run of the year for the San Diego Padres in the third inning. Wimbledon Upsets: Newcombe And King

Top Seeds Sent To Sidelines

WIMBLEDON, England (UPI) — Ken Rosewall of Australia and Olga Morozova of Russia gave the Wimbledon Tennis Championships one of its greatest days of upsets today by eliminating topseeds John Newcombe and Billie Jean King on their way to the semifinals.

Jimmy Connors of Belleville, Ill. added a smaller footnote to a surprising day by beating the defending champion Jan Kodes of Czechoslovakia to join the semifinalists.

Kerry Melville of Australia picked her way through the debris of broken service games to retire third-seeded Evonne Goolagong, a former title holder, 9-7, 1-6, 6-2.

Ninth seeded Rosewall, at 39 the oldest man in the singles, summoned up the racket wizardry of his youth, tempered with more than 20 years of experience and gave a masterly display of all court tennis in eliminating Newcombe, 6-1, 1-6, 6-0, 7-5.

Then Billie Jean, an odds on favorite in the betting to become the first woman to win the singles six times went down before the speed and determination of the pigtailed 25-year-old Russian 7-5, 6-2.

Connors, third seeded, just managed to hold off a weary Kodes, 3-6, 6-3, 6-3, 6-8, 6-3 to gain his semifinal berth.

SURPRISE

Mrs. Morozova, one of the first international tennis stars produced by Russia, dropped her first service in the opening set and the court one stage seemed arranged for another Billie Jean triumph.

But the Russian, one of the fastest movers in women's tennis, broke back and battled Billie Jean with placements often forcing the Long Beach girl into errors. Morozova got the winning service break at love to lead 6-5 in the first set with Billie Jean doublefaulting at game point.

In the second set the Russian broke to 3-2 after Billie Jean strenuously objected to a line call. She was so upset by the call she hit a ball over the roof of the court in an untypical display of temper.

RALLIES

There were long rallies with Billie Jean unable to put the ball away decisively—she was over the baseline with an easy overhead smash to give Morozova advantage in the 7th game. And then drilled a ball into the net to lose her service to give the Russian a 5-2 lead.

Mrs. Morozova served for the match. Billie Jean saved the first match point with a forehand cross-court placement. The Russian made an error on the second and Billie Jean was wide with a placement on the third match point.

It was the second bad day for the queen of American tennis. Last night she and Rosemary Casals of San Francisco, the top seeds, were beaten in the women's doubles by an unseeded pair.

DECISIVE

Rosewall, three times a loser here in the finals, doesn't want to call it a career until he can win Wimbledon, the only major title which has eluded him in over 20 years on the circuit. Hardly a man could remember so decisive a defeat—including a love set—for Newcombe, the reigning U.S. and W.C.T. champion, in a major tournament.

Fourth seeded Stan Smith of Sea Pines, S.C. beat the muscular Egyptian southpaw, Ismael El Shafei, 9-8, 7-5, 6-8, 7-5, and will play Rosewall in the semifinals. This pits one of the tallest men in the tournament against one of the smallest, but although the Australian will also be giving away more than a dozen years he figures to start as favorite.

Earlier Chris Evert defeated Helga Mastoff of Germany, 6-4, 6-2, to become the first girl to reach the women's singles semifinals.

Rosewall reached his first final here exactly 20 years ago when he was defeated by Jaroslav Drobny. Two years later he lost to Lew Hoad, then he turned pro and had to wait until the arrival of open tennis for his next chance. That came in 1970 and Newcombe defeated him in five sets for the second of his three championship victories.

A'S TOP ANGELS

Dick Williams Still Learning

ANAHEIM (AP) — "This is still a learning experience for me," Dick Williams said as he reflected, on a second straight loss as manager of the California Angels.

"I've got to see things first hand — and I am. Hopefully, we'll be able to rectify the situation before too many more losses occur."

One occurred last night when Angel Mangual drove in four runs with a three-run homer and a double, leading the Oakland A's — Williams' employers for the past two seasons — to a 7-5 win over the Angels.

"We beat ourselves again," Williams said, echoing a statement he made the previous evening after a 5-3 loss to Oakland in his Anaheim managerial debut.

"Maybe this time we can chalk it up to youthful inexperience."

Williams referred to a pitch made by rookie hurler Frank Tanana. That was the one he served up to Mangual in the sixth inning and Mangual hit it over the left field fence for three runs.

That erased a 3-2 deficit and gave Oakland the lead for good.

Williams said he will meet privately with his pitchers and catchers before tonight's third game of the series which will match Glenn Abbott, 1-1, and California lefty Andy Hassler, 1-2.

"It will be a refresher course on how to pitch to some of their hitters and how pitchers and catchers should work together," Williams said.

The Angels struck for a fast run in the first inning when Mickey Rivers tripled and scored on Dave Chalk's single. The A's scored twice in the fourth when Sal Bando doubled, Reggie Jackson singled and Mangual doubled.

A single by Bobby Valentine and John Doherty's double created a 2-2 tie in the fourth and the Angels went ahead in the fifth when Denny Doyle doubled and scored on Lee Stanton's single.

With two out in the sixth, Joe Rudi doubled and Gene Tenace walked before Mangual drilled his seventh homer of the year, goving him four RBIs for the evening.

After Bourque's two-run single made it 7-3 in the eighth the Angels rebounded with a pair of runs by Dave Chalk singled off winner Ken Holtzman (9-9) and Bob Oliver singled against reliever Rollie Fingers. Valentine chased runners home with a double.

PADRES' GREAT MOMENT

Giants On Bottom

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Things are going so badly for the San Francisco Giants that even a baseball team which has never been out of the cellar so late in the season passes them in the standings.

"It's a great feeling just to be in fifth," said Cito Gaston, who had three hits, drove in a pair of runs and scored three others in the San Diego Padres' 5-1 victory over the Giants last night.

"Nate Colbert and I have been here for six years and there have been a lot of tough times, so any improvement is good," said Gaston.

Randy Jones, 5-12, picked up the victory, which was the Padres' 18th in their last 27 games and vaulted them over the Giants into fifth place by one-half game in the National League West. The loss was the Giants' 10th in the last 11 games.

"I never thought we'd pass the Giants," admitted Padres Manager John McNamara, who coached at San Francisco last year. "We were out of last place for one day early this season, but this is the latest the Padres ever have been out of sixth. We had a good June mainly because of our pitching."

Slugger Willie McCovey, whose two-run homer was the winning blow, agreed. "Pitching brought us to where we are in one month. It's amazing what you can do if you get a little pitching. It can carry you a long way — look at the Mets last season."

Loser John D'Acquisto, 6-7, also pitched well, but was damaged by Gaston's first-inning homer and McCovey's two-run shot in the third.

Gaston's blast was his fifth and ended an 85-inning homer shortage for the Padres. McCovey's 410-foot smash to center was his sixth of the season, half of them coming at Candlestick, where he played for most of his career.

Giants Manager Wes Westrum, now 0-4, had a 20-minute closed-door meeting with his coaches following the game. "It's no secret what's wrong," Westrum said. "We're just not hitting — our bats are sick."

Dolphins Are Divided Over Football Strike Demands

NEW YORK (UPI) — More and more the success of the National Football League appears to be linked to the world champion Miami Dolphins.

And the Dolphins —who are scheduled to open the exhibition season against the College All-Stars on July 26—are anything but unanimous in their support of the Players Association list of demands.

"I think (Players Director Ed) Garvey and his pals running the union are too far out," said Dolphins' center Jim Langer yesterday. "Most of them are over-the-hill players who aren't concerned about the needs of other players."

By going along with the union's demands to boycott the college game, the Dolphin players stand to lose an average of $5,000 per man —a regular season's game paycheck.

"I don't think we're going to come out smelling like roses, making ridiculous demands for twice as much money with less work and discipline," Langer continued. "And especially if we don't play the All-Star game.

Langer also called the players demands for no curfews, no fines and limited practice hours "just not realistic."

On Monday, Dolphins player representative, linebacker Doug Swift, expressed apprehension that the team would agree to boycott the game at their scheduled meeting on Friday night. "If we don't hold the line," Swift said, "it could weaken the Association's position like Kansas City did in 1970."

The Kansas City Chiefs were given permission by the players to play the All-Star game during the first NFL strike in 1970.

Besides Langer, other Dolphin starters already on record as favoring playing the All-Star game are wide receiver Howard Twilley and guard Bob Kuechenberg, while still others like middle linebacker Nick Buoniconti and fullback Larry Csonka are undecided.

The San Diego Chargers, meanwhile, present the first actual confrontation today as the first team to open training camp. Rookies and free agents are expected to report to United States International University near San Diego by noon and when they do, they'll be greeted by a picket line (headed by O.J. Simpson of the Buffalo Bills) which plans to begin assembling at 11 a.m.

W. Germans, Dutch Favored In Soccer

FRANKFURT, Germany (UPI) — There's West Germany, the long-standing favorite; Holland, the new favorite; Brazil, coming around after an inauspicious start; and Poland, the surprise team and still the outsider despite five victories.

These four teams met today in two semifinals to decide which pair goes into the July 7 World Cup final in Munich.

Holland and West Germany need only a draw to reach Munich. Their opponents, Brazil and Poland, respectively, must win.

Yesterday the teams exchanged compliments.

"I consider them (Holland) the best team in the world," said Brazilian manager Mario Zagalo. But he said Brazil would meet West Germany in the final.

West German Manager Helmut Schoen said, "I'm glad we are not meeting the Brazilians. To me, they are like the Sphinx."

Johan Cruyff of Holland said, "The Brazilians frighten me a little. They are improving all the time."

Poland Manager Kazimierz Gorski was less talkative. He would only say, "We will go all out to win. We need the goals."

According to the bookmakers, Holland has the best chance of capturing the World Cup. West Germany is the second choice, with Brazil quoted at 11-2 and Poland a 7-1 outsider.

Zagalo said, "We will beat the Dutch even though I consider them the best side in the world. After a so-so start we have found our rhythm and I believe the final will be between us and the West Germans."

Some experts were skeptical. Holland has played superbly, lodging itself as number two scoring team in the competition despite the fact it has never met the World Cup's most porous defenses —Zaire, Australia and Haiti.

Sorcery Ahead In Pacific Race

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The 61-foot sloop Sorcery led the pack of vessels heading toward the finish line today of the Los Angeles to Tahiti yacht race.

Sorcery, skippered by J. D. Wood of Marina del Rey, Calif., was reported only 191 miles from the finish line at Papeete yesterday.

Robert Esling-O'Brien, also of Marina del Rey, was skippering Spirit, the second-place yacht, which reported itself about 265 miles behind Sorcery.

Clemson Recruiters Deny $1,000 Offers

PETERSBURG, Va. (UPI) — Clemson University officials denied yesterday that recruiters twice tried to slip more than $1,000 under the table to high school basketball superstar Moses Malone as an inducement to sign a grant-in-aid.

Malone's uncle, Charlie Hudgins, said yesterday Clemson officials gave him a "yellow envelope" containing more than $1,000 early last month to put toward a car for Malone.

Hudgins said he returned the money when Malone's mother advised against accepting it, but he took the money again June 12 after Clemson officials insisted he accept the gift. Hudgins said he later returned the money again.

Hudgins' story of camouflaged offers from both Clemson and the University of New Mexico supported statements made earlier in the day by Mrs. Malone that both schools made illegal recruiting offers before the 6-foot 10 Malone finally signed with the University of Maryland June 20.

Clemson coach Tates Locke flatly denied making any illegal overtures to Malone or his relatives and said he hoped the NCAA would investigate the charges.

"There was never any kind of inducement to that young man," Locke said. "It is really ridiculous. I can't believe she (Mrs. Malone) would say that."

Mrs. Malone also charged that the University of New Mexico recruiter let her son use his rented car while he camped near the Malone home.

New Job Perfect For Charlie Fox

Charlie Fox is to be congratulated on his new job. It's perfect for him. In addition to his responsibilities as a scout at the major league level the Giants should add Fox to their speakers bureau this winter. Relived of the pressures of managing he would be an excellent banquet speaker.

I can't imagine a more clear cut example of the "Peter Principle" than Fox. Heis a man who was promoted to the level of his incompetence. But what better place for it to happen than in the employ of Horace Stoneham. In normal circles if a man can't do his job one of two things happens. He either stays at that level and makes life miserable for himself and those around him or he is fired. With the Giants they find you another spot in the organization and at the same salary. As I've said before, Horace Stoneham is a very nice person to work for.

THE PLAYERS COMING to Charlie's defense after he quit was ludicrous. The horses have already escaped so you might as well leave the barn door open. Their quotes backing Fox were empty. Jim Barr's statement that "There was a brief period, but a real period when we didn't — all of us — try our hardest," and Ron Bryant's statement that "Charlie lost us. You can't treat men as children. Charlie is inflexible," come as close as any to telling it the way it was.

Having advocated Charlie's resignation for some time, I now find that he may have done it too soon. Had he waited until the end of the year the Giants might have gone outside the organization to hire a replacement. This season can be chalked up to experience. Wes Westrum, though supposedly an interim manager is talking like anything but that. I'm afraid if he were to ask Horace if he could stay on that his wish would be honored. When Westrum left the Giants to manage the Mets Horace wished him well. He also told him that he would never hire him to manage the Giants because he didn't ever want to fire him. Time will tell.

WHERE DO THE GIANTS go from here? Hopefully not to Minneapolis as was suggested in one San Francisco newspaper. There has been some clamor for Horace Stoneham to step down, the feeling being that he should relinguish the team to someone who would pump some new life into it. This brings up the question of who.

While the front office of the Giants has been maligned as being ancient there is some young blood that has been around long enough to have some very definite ideas as to how to run a major league organization. I'm sure Horace would have loved to have been able to turn the operation over to his son Peter. The problem with this has been Peter. The pressure of running the ballclub would be more than he could handle.

THE TEAM WILL NOT be sold to an outsider. I predict that N.L. president Chub Feeney will eventually take over the Giants and that he will promote John Taddeucci and Art Santo Domingo to more powerful positions. Feeney has proven that he is not adverse to firing people by his recent elimination of National League publicist Dave Grote from a position he had held for over 20 years. This very trait would go a long way toward curing some of the Giants' front office ills.

Williams Named A.L. Manager

Combined AP & UPI

ANAHEIM — Dick Williams got the job, but Earl Weaver got the fancy title.

Lee MacPhail, American League president, announced yesterday that Williams would be the league's all-star team manager and named Weaver "Honorary assistant manager."

Williams guided the Oakland A's past Weaver's Baltimore Orioles in last year's American League playoffs and then to a world championship.

So Weaver was named all-star skipper, but stepped aside after Williams resumed his baseball career by accepting the managing job with the California Angels.

Wood Wins 13th

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Wilbur Wood was the eighth wonder of the baseball world a year ago when he appeared to be heading for a 30-victory season.

Today he's taken for granted although he's pitching at essentially the same clip for the Chicago White Sox as he did in 1973.

The portly knuckleballer, who had 14-11 record on July 2 last season, raised his current mark to 13-9 last night when he pitched a six-hitter to give the White Sox a 4-1 victory over the Kansas City Royals. Wood's victory total is second only to the Cleveland Indians' Gaylord Perry, who is 14-1.

"It was about a normal game for me," said Wood, who struck out five and walked none. "I was around the plate all night and didn't walk anybody. I kept the ball low and they kept hitting it on the ground. That's what I wanted them to do. It's the way to win ball games."

Homers by Dick Allen and Bill Melton were the big blows of the game for the White Sox although Wood praised Jorge Orta for his hustle which led to the Sox' third run in the sixth inning. Orta went all the way to third when leftfielder Jim Wohlford misplayed his fly for an error and scored on a single by Carlos May.

Red Sox 9 Orioles 6

Dwight Evans' two-run single and Doug Griffin's run-scoring single sparked a four-run ninth-inning uprising which enabled the Red Sox to beat the Orioles. Diego Segui earned his fifth win with 1 1-3 innings of relief. Danny Cater homered for the Red Sox and Paul Blair connected for Baltimore.

Indians 5 Brewers 3

The Indians ran their winning streak to four games with the help of a two-run single by Frank Duffy during a four-r second inning and Geor Hendrick's fourth homer in fo games and 14th of the seaso Jim Perry went 5 1-3 innings win his seventh game whi Kevin Kobel lost his eigh decision. Don Money homere for the Brewers.

Tigers 4 Yankees 2

Gary Sutherland doubled two runs and scored a third in four-run fifth inning whic paved the way for Luke Walke to win his fourth game wit relief help from Jim Ray. P Dobson was the loser for th Yankees, who have dropped si consecutive games.

Twins 5 Rangers 4

Pinch-hitter Glenn Borgman doubled into the left field co ner to score Eric Soderholr from first base with two out i the ninth and give the Twins Billy Campbell his third victo ry. Roy Carew had three hits raising his average to .393 fo the Twins.

'Physical Freak' Marshall 'Super'

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Marshall appeared in his 52nd game of the season for Los Angeles last night and his 12th straight game, extending his major league record for consecutive appearances in the process, as the Dodgers set down the Cincinnati Reds, 3-2.

Marshall relieved in the sixth inning and scattered four hits the rest of the way to earn his 10th win of the season against three losses. Marshall stands a good chance of becoming the first reliever to win 20 games. The present mark for most wins by a reliever is held by Elroy Face of the 1959 Pittsburgh Pirates—18.

Marshall, when asked how he felt about being called a "physical freak" by the press because of the tremendous amount of pitching he's done, turned the question away flatly.

"No, I'm not a physical freak. I could explain why, but I don't have the time and you guys wouldn't understand it if I did because of your lack of physiological background."

Marshall, who has a master's degree in education probably could explain it, but his manager has no need for explanations.

Pirates 4, Expos 2

The Pirates won their 13th straight game at Three Rivers Stadium and fifth in a row as Richie Zisk delivered three run-scoring singles and Jim Rooker added a run-scoring single in addition to pitching an eight-hitter.

Mets 4, Phillies 2

Tom Seaver, making his first start since June 21, allowed only three hits in 7 1-3 innings before he was forced to leave the game when a pinched nerve in his left hip began acting u again. Jack Aker came on t protect Seaver's fifth win of th year.

Cubs 4, Cards 3

Rick Monday clubbed a so homer and Bill Madlock ar Vic Harris contributed ru scoring doubles to lead Chica to victory over the Cards.

Astros 5, Braves 1

Claude Osteen had a perfec night at the plate with thre hits and a sacrifice fly, helpin to even his record at 7-7. I addition to pitching a six-hitte he cracked a double to ignite three-run Houston fifth inning.

MINOR LEAGUES

Forry Loses, ERA Still Goes Down

The more Dewey Forry loses, the better he looks.

For the second straight week, the relief pitcher from San Rafael lost a baseball game but lowered his earned run average.

While toiling for the Los Angeles Dodgers' Waterbury, Conn. team in the Class AA Eastern League, the right-hander pitched six innings in two games. Forry (0-3) surrendered four hits and two walks while striking out two. His ERA improved from 4.76 to 3.91.

Although Forry had some success, other Marinites were not as fortunate in the minor leagues last week, according to Player Periscope statistical service of Novato.

Clifford Hall, who was converted from the outfield to first base this season with Newport News in the Carolina Class A league, saw his batting average dip two points to .277. The Marin City product homered and singled twice in 12 at-bats. Hall scored twice and drove in three runs.

Novato's slumping Tom Thomas homered once in 19 plate appearances as his average plummeted from .364 to .245. The outfielder had four runs batted in for Thetford, Vt. of the Eastern League in the Pittsburgh Pirates chain.

Kentfield's Tom Olson was hitless in four at-bats. The outfielder is batting .156 for Anderson in the Western Carolinas Class A League. He's a New York Mets' property.

Pro Bowling Triumph For Anthony

SAN JOSE, Calif. (UPI) — Earl Anthony, Tacoma, Wash., considered one of the best pro bowlers in competition, added to his luster yesterday when he rolled his way to victory in the windup in the $47,500 Home Box Office Open Bowling Tournament.

Anthony's 259 score in the championship game easily beat Nelson Burton Jr., St. Louis, who shot a 215.

In capturing his 10th championship in five years on the pro circuit, Anthony also registered his third crown this year. He earned $5,000 to put his bankroll for 1974 at nearly $60,000.

Burton took away $2,800 as he failed in his bid to win his 11th title.

In the opening contest, Larry Laub, Santa Rosa, defeated Carmen Salvino, Chicago, 233-216. Laub then came against Art Trask, Miami, and Trask, the only bowler among the five finalists ever to have won a crown, was the winner, 244-235.

Burton, however, then stepped in and ousted the Miami bowler 234-175.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Retiree Squeezed By Rising Costs

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I am troubled because my set income is not keeping up with my rising expenses. As you may have guessed I am on Social Security. I have 150 shares of Southern Pacific costing $5,700. The drop in the value of these shares worries me. Is it possible for me to change the ownership of these shares to include my daughter? — S.B.

A. Yes, just write to the registrar — Crocker-Citizens National Bank, San Francisco, Calif. — requesting the change. There is a small charge for the service. Other than to reassure you on your investment I can offer very little by way of constructive advice for increasing your income, since the current return on your shares is close to 7 per cent. A switch to bonds would add about 2 per cent to your annual return, which would be eaten up by commissions in the first year. Furthermore, this type of fixed-income investment offers no protection, through dividend increases, against inflation.

Southern Pacific has had a good record of dividend increases on rising earnings. The current rate which has been in effect six quarters could be upped if 1974 profits meet expectations of $4 or more per share. The recent freight-rate rise, exploitation of the company's extensive land holdings and ifs burgeoning "piggy-back" operations are all bullish for the future of So. Pac.

Q. Could you provide me with the name and address of a firm which will give me information on the value of some old stock certificates I have located? — R.S.

A. With any luck one of these certificates may be a long shot that will pay off. But the odds are 20 to 1 against you. There are at least two firms in the business of tracing obsolete and defunct companies and evaluating old securities. The first is R.M. Smythe Co., 170 Broadway, New York, N.Y. 10038. The second is B.S. Lichtenstein, 1 Maiden Lane, New York, N.Y.

Employment Service For Youths Opens

Summer Youth Employment Program, an organization run by and for high school and college students of Marin, has opened at the California State Employment Development Department, 757 Lincoln Avenue, in San Rafael.

Spokesman for the group is David West of Belvedere, who graduated from Redwood High School last month and is going to College of Idaho this fall. He said the program is the cooperative effort of the Neighborhood Youth Corps, Marin County Youth Commission, Industry and Education Council, the state Employment Development Department and the work experience coordinators in the various schools.

"We have been registering high school and college students and now have a list of about 1,500 students from 14 on up qualified for all types of work, full or part time, temporary or permanent," said West. He and two other youths, Linda Mayfield of Novato and Marlene Bracali of San Anselmo, are the youth employment representatives who have been registering students and are now trying to drum up jobs. Supervising their efforts is Sue Missimer, a regular staff member of the state Employment Development Department.

"Our main problem is that we have more applicants than jobs," said Wekst. "We've contacted various agencies like the Marin Housing Authority and the Marin Builders Exchange but we just don't have enough job offers." He said students are looking for most any type of work — cleaning yards, caring for pets or plants, moving furniture, or filling in as summer relief in restaurants or stores.

The state Employment Development Department has handled youth employment programs in the past, but this is the first year that students themselves have moved into the department to administer the program themselves, said West. "We serve as the central point where all agencies can refer jobs."

Doll Industry Still A Booming Business

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Little girls in the United States still love dolls so much that sales rose 22 per cent in the five years between 1967 and 1973, the Census Bureau reports.

The 1972 doll sales at the manufacturers' price level were $199 million and the industry employed 10,400 workers.

Holiday And Loan Rates Cool Market

NEW YORK (UPI) — With the July 4 holiday approaching and concern still strong over rising interest rates, stock prices were mixed in slow trading today on the New York Stock Exchange.

The market will be closed tomorrow for the Fourth of July holiday, but will be open Friday. Many investors planned a long weekend and trading was slow, analysts said.

Many investors have taken to the sidelines, showing concern over interest rates which have risen to record highs. And there are no signs the upward move is subsiding.

Polaroid, whose 11 ⅜-point decline Tuesday triggered a general market plunge, was the most active issue after a delayed opening, up ½ at 24 ¾ on 134,200 shares. The issue opened unchanged at 24 ¼ on 123,400 shares.

There was some major trading in the irregular oils. Natomas gained 2 ⅛. Superior Oil lost 2 ½, Getty Oil 1 ¼ and Halliburton 1.

Prices were lower in slow trading on the American Stock Exchange. Michigan General was the most active issue, off ⅞ at 1 ⅛ on 66,400 shares.

Fake Ads Sold By Telephone

That's the warning issued by Don Schwartz, president of the Better Business Bureau of San Francisco. Schwartz said the solitication is by telephone, with the caller appealing on behalf of a "labor" or "minority" or "veteran" organization not familiar to the prospective advertiser.

In addition to ad solicitations from strangers, Schwartz reports a sharp increase in the receipt by businessmen of invoices for unauthorized ads in these publications.

In the case of "labor" publications, the BBB received many inquiries regarding ads being solicited by six different labor organizations that plan to publish an "official" guide, publication of program which is purportedly endorsed by the AFL-CIO. These publications are to be distributed to a delegation of more than 25,000 members and their families at the 11th Constitutional Convention of the AFL-CIO to be held in San Francisco in the fall of 1975.

A letter from AFL-CIO headquarters in Washington, D.C., emphatically states that "no one is authorized or permitted to solicit advertisements in the name of the AFL-CIO for any program or directory in connection with that convention.

Some of the solicitations are accompanied by veiled threats. One prospective advertiser, who rejected a telephone solicitor representing a "minority" publication, gave this report to BBB:

"The phone solicitor said 'You are full of . . . (expletive deleted).' Then asked whether I had bullet-proof windows. I immediately asked him where he was located at this time. He replied he was just around the corner from me. I asked him specifically where, and he said "maybe I'll come up to see you' and hung up."

Schwartz said that all pleas for advertising space should not be considered questionable. However, he suggested that the company ask the phone solicitor to put his proposal in writing, or tell him that company policy prohibits consideration of telephone solicitation, or simply say "no."

With the sale of his store, Hartunian said he will look for some other activity with shorter working hours.

Nixon Pal Indicted In Bank Fraud

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — A high school dropout who rose to riches and friendship with President Nixon was charged yesterday with taking $27.5 million from his now-defunct bank through illegal manipulation of funds.

The 25-count felony indictment against C. Arnholt Smith, former president and board chairman of the United States National Bank, included charges that he approved about $170 million in loans and letters of credit to further the conspiracy.

The San Diego-based institution collapsed in October in the largest bank failure in U.S. history. The Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. is liquidating about $400 million in bank loans, the Justice Department said.

Named as codefendant was Philip A. Toft, former president of the Smith-controlled Westgate-California Corp., a conglomerate in bankruptcy since March. Smith also is former president and chairman of Westgate.

Late Tuesday, Smith and Toft appeared before U.S. Magistrate Edward Infante and pleaded innocent to the charges. They were released after signing $25,000 bonds and told to return for further proceedings July 31.

The indictment, which charged Toft in 20 counts, said the conspiracy began in January, 1969. It said the men used the borrowing power of Westgate subsidiaries to obtain fraudulent cash loans from USNB and from other banks based on USNB letters of credit.

They were charged with converting the loans to their own use or to the benefit of companies they controlled.

Other accusations included attempting to influence a witness before the Securities and Exchange Commission, making false statements to federal bank examiners, falsifying bank records and making false statements to the government.

The indictment said false information was used to conceal the fact that Smith and Toft were not acting in the ordinary and proper exercise of their executive powers, the purported borrowers were not the real borrowers and the proceeds of the loans were not intended to be used for the purposes stated.

Smith, once named San Diego's "Man of the Century," bought control of USNB in 1933 and saw it grow from one branch to more than 60 with $1 billion in assets. He founded Westgate in 1960.

The conglomerate had vast holdings in land, an airline, numerous taxicab companies and a tuna fishing fleet and food processing operation.

A high school dropout, Smith was an election-eve companion of Nixon when he first was elected president in 1968. He has aided Nixon since his first campaign for Congress in California in 1946.
